

State Department Approves Road Plans

After Weeks of Delay, Approval Has Been Given and Construction May Now Begin—State Wanted County to Build Road to New Prison in Shawangunk.

The county road program for 1932 has finally been approved by the State Department as adopted by the board of supervisors and construction work throughout the county may now progress.

Several weeks ago at a meeting of the board of supervisors a program for county highway work was presented and approved by the board. Under the law the program must be submitted to the State Department for approval. That approval was denied. One of the chief reasons apparently was the fact that the board had not adopted a program which included the construction of a road in the town of Shawangunk leading to the new Medium Security Prison, which is under construction in that town near Wallkill. The county officials felt that this road, leading to a state prison, could hardly be classed as a county necessity but rather a necessity created by the state and in view of that circumstance should be constructed by the state.

This year the highway appropriation has been very materially reduced over the appropriation of 1931. County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran, in drawing up a program of work for 1932 was limited to some extent as to the amount of work which could be done this year by reason of the reduced appropriation. An effort was made to include in this year's program of construction uncompleted projects and the construction of the more necessary routes and in planning his program he also took into consideration the unemployment problem in the various towns with the idea of giving as much necessary work in towns where unemployment would be relieved, thus serving a two-fold purpose, that of giving good roads and at the same time providing necessary work.

The program as submitted by Mr. Loughran and as adopted by the board of supervisors has been approved. There is a probability that one section of road at Galeville will be added in the town of Shawangunk. One of the projects called for in the 1932 program is the construction of about a mile of road leading from Kerhonkson to join the Minerva-Kerhonkson state highway. This was included when it was learned the state did not anticipate the completion of that route to join the Kingston-Elenville route for some time and since it is the intention of the state to build the road when it does construct it over a different alignment than the county road will cover.

GIORDANO TELLS OF HARLEM "BABY KILLING"

New York, July 1 (AP).—Police Commissioner Edward J. Murphy announced today that Frank Giordano, scheduled to die tonight in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison, had confessed he was in the automobile from which the slayings were fired in the Harlem "baby killing" a year ago and that Vincent Chin, slain gang leader, did the shooting.

Commissioner Murphy said that at 1 a. m. today he had talked on the telephone with Warden Lawes, who had just left the Sing Sing death house after a talk with Giordano and Dominic Cidriano, both of whom were granted a 24-hour reprieve shortly after the time for their scheduled execution last night.

Warden Lawes had delayed the scheduled execution after a statement made by the condemned men, and later granted the reprieve on recommendation of Governor Roosevelt's counsel.

Coll and Giordano were tried for the Harlem killing and were acquitted December 28 last by order of the court after George Brecht, of Missouri, the state's principal witness, admitted that he had lied twice on the witness stand, and admitted also that he had been convicted in St. Louis of a Jew's theft when he was 15 years old.

BENEDICTINE BRIDGE PARTY DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL AFFAIR

A most delightful social affair occurred on Wednesday afternoon on the spacious lawn of the Benedictine Hospital, when the Ladies' Auxiliary of the hospital, Mrs. Walter C. Miller, president, gave its annual bridge party, with about 200 ladies in attendance. The setting was most lovely beneath the pines with huge umbrellas in their gay colors and swinging Japanese lanterns intermingling with huge white multi-colored and handsome towels worn by the ladies was most picturesque to see. At each table there was a useful and attractive favor and dainty refreshments were served by a bevy of charming Misses of the younger social set. The day was ideal, the setting was most attractive, and a large number of guests present, so no doubt a goodly sum will be realized for the benefit of the hospital charity fund.

Eight Departments Begin New Year Legally Penniless

Washington, July 1 (AP).—Nearly $3,000,000,000 in the hole, the Federal government today began a new financial year with eight big departments legally penniless because of a lagging Congress.

Four annual appropriations bills that should have been law at midnight last night were caught, along with relief, in legislative machinery that promised to prevent adjournment of Congress until well into next week.

The last figures available before the new fiscal year began showed Uncle Sam with a $2,852,035,000 deficit, the biggest of any nation in peacetime. Forecasts were that the final total would be considerably nearer $3,000,000,000.

The eight departments that legally ran out of funds with the expiration of the old year were: State, Justice, Commerce, Treasury, Post Office, Agriculture and War. J. C. Rupp, director of the budget, was not gravely concerned about the temporary lack of funds, saying that if the appropriations bills were law by next pay-day everybody would be satisfied.

Congressional leaders predicted that before adjournment today all departments except War would have their allotments at the White House. Conferees still were at odds over a provision in the war bill to force the retirement of 2,000 army officers.

Coupled with the knowledge that the deficit would be nearly $3,000,000,000 for 1932, officials drew cheer as to 1933 possibilities from numerous things, including the $1,118,500,000 new tax law, the $150,000,000 economy bill, reductions of several hundred millions in appropriations. They expected a "balanced budget" on June 30, 1933.

Besides the left-over appropriations, Congress was primarily interested in relief. Conferees on the $2,300,000,000 Garner-Wagner measure continued their efforts to compromise, considering suggestions from Secretary Mills of the treasury on what he thought the best way to finance a huge public works program.

These conferees expected to agree finally this week but thought drafting of the finished bill would take several days.

Between appropriations, the Senate wedged in debate on Philippine independence while plans were made for consideration soon of the home loan bank system favored by President Hoover.

Montgomery Man Drowns in De Witt Lake

Frank J. Nega, 26 years old, of Scott's Corners, Montgomery, was drowned Wednesday at De Witt Lake about 5 o'clock in the evening. He with others had gone to the lake to swim and Nega entered the water some distance from the swimming beach. When he sank from view efforts were immediately made to recover the body, which was brought to the surface within a short time. Dr. Galvin of Rosendale was called and Coroner Conner was notified. The body was taken in charge temporarily by Undertaker McCardell, and later turned over to G. S. Millspaugh of Walden.

Nega was born in Yonkers but resided near Montgomery. After an investigation Coroner Conner issued a certificate giving the cause of death as accidental drowning. Funeral services will be Saturday, with interment in Wallkill Valley Cemetery.

Our Growing Population

The following births have been reported to the Board of Health: Mr. and Mrs. Judson Bunker of 28 Howland avenue, a son, Judson, Jr., at Benedictine Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. James J. Greene of Nappeth, L. I., a daughter, Sally Anne, at Kingston Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Milliken of this city, a son, Robert Edward, at Kingston Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Clodgo of 50 Murray street, a daughter, Gloria Ann, at Kingston Hospital.

Call For National Banks

Washington, July 1 (AP).—The comptroller of the currency issued a call today for the condition of all national banks at the close of business June 30.

Bankruptcy Petition

New York, July 1 (AP).—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in federal court today against the National Electric Power Company, a $600,000,000 power concern, with offices at 57 William street.

Lot of Sore Feet Following Parades

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—Then all the parades in the Chicago Stadium were laid end to end there were a lot of sore feet. Many Democrats have done more walking in the last 24 hours than they had done in 24 days. The mileage was impressive.

There were unnumbered parades, unarmed and simply going for the walk. They were the amateurs. The men and women carrying a flag or standard in one hand and a rattle, tambourine or bell in the other were the pros. They lost their amateur standing at some other convention many years ago.

The Chicago Stadium with its sparse few thousand occupants no doubt is a comfortable place in which to watch a sporting event, especially a hockey game. Pack 25,000 to 30,000 persons around and above the arena and it is something else again. It is not enough sitting still with a fan on each side. Only the rugged can parade under such conditions.

The veterans of other conventions loomed above their marching fellows. They paid no attention to the weather, the condition of the track nor the fact that many of them were allotted weight for age. They knew their parades.

One perspiring marcher sniffed as a friendly spectator gave him a wave from a fan.

"Don't mind me," he said, "I did this for Bryan."

Some of the girls got a break. Gallant fellow delegates lifted them on their shoulders and carried them around the hall.

As speakers approached the climax, the friendly delegates were on their marks ready for the gun—the candidate's name—to leap into the aisle.

Some standards were zealously guarded. Others were free and easy and one was trotted out for at least three demonstrations.

Although a great majority took their hiking in all seriousness, some of the boys, it seemed, came just for the fun.

Tall young Jimmie Roosevelt enjoyed two work-outs, matinee and night. After the parade for his father some of his close friends took the floor for another candidate and Jimmie fell in with them.

He was broad-minded. Some of the bitter-enders, paraders with an evident marathon complex, were the fattest in the lineup. One of them must have weighed more than 300 pounds.

The chairman took judicial notice of the effort involved to get off a bit of Walshian sarcasm. As the delegates milled about the aisles instead of taking their seats as he advised, he suggested:

"If the gentlemen wish to get some exercise, they might go outside."

COL. GREENE ANSWERS SENATOR HEWITT'S CHARGE

Albany, N. Y., July 1 (AP).—Senator Charles J. Hewitt's charge that the Democratic chairman of Cayuga county was hiring the laborers for construction of the Locke-Summerhill highway brought the answer today from the superintendent of public works that the foreman on the job was a Republican and that if anything was wrong, it was his fault, as he had the power to discharge.

Col. Frederick Stuart Greene said also that of the nine laborers on the job, six belonged to the department's general maintenance gang, with headquarters at Genoa, and that the other three came from Locke. Senator Hewitt's home.

Col. Greene said he was glad the Republican senator complained, because it gave him a chance to state the policy of hiring laborers on such work. He said under the Miller administration, Republican county chairmen were given printed forms on which they put their selections for both laborers and foremen; that he had put a stop to this "vicious system"; that in accordance with a long established custom county chairmen were given the opportunity to suggest workers, but that the foremen were ordered to keep only those who worked. The few recommended by county chairmen were promptly discharged, he wrote, denying outright Senator Hewitt's charge that foremen could not discharge.

Rounding Up Vagrants

The round-up of vagrants before Justice John Acker continues, and six were committed to the county jail Thursday to serve three day sentences. They were William Foster, 43, William Buford, 30, John Wallace, 34, all negroes and Patrick Curran, 45, Patrick Connor, 46, Daniel Hurley, 42, all were booked as residents of New York. Charles Wilkinson and Alexander Turner, North Carolina negroes, who had been held for arraignment before the same judge, were given five days in the county jail.

11 Men Drowned

Cash, Irish Free State, July 1 (AP).—Eleven men were drowned and fifteen saved of the crew of the four-masted bark Melbourne when it sank today off Fastnet when it collided with the tanker Seminoe.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, July 1 (AP).—Treasury receipts for June 30 were $24,705,321; expenditures, $147,681,939.33; net balance, $122,976,618.17. Customs receipts for the month were $17,372,970.90.

Mack's Speech Naming Roosevelt

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—Naming Roosevelt today, his old friend John H. Mack, told the Democratic convention the New Yorker since the very first day of the convention, America with a clear perspective and a knowledge of the entire nation as our chief executive.

One of the most tumultuous outbursts of a roisterous convention came as Mack, the man who persuaded Roosevelt to run for his first public office more than 20 years ago, asked: "What was brought about in the first place because he insisted on knowing his own state first. He knew every public institution and county in the state, every public institution and county in the state knew him. It was a repetition of his record as assistant secretary of the navy when because of his characteristic thoroughness, he knew every port of this country and every port, likewise knew him."

A marked characteristic of the man he advocated for the Presidency, Mack said, was his ability to get things done through knowing his subject.

He instanced his delving into the subject of marketing farm produce, which resulted in a measure that "protected the farm from rapacious and dishonest middlemen." He cited Governor Roosevelt's success as a business executive and his record as assistant secretary of the navy and as governor of New York.

"He has put into effect more savings and brought about such efficient administration that the credit of the state of New York is on a higher basis than that of the federal government," Mack asserted.

"He has first-hand information," Mack added, "of the demands, and needs of every state in the Union because he has been in every one of them."

"Gentlemen of the convention," he said, "our party presents to the country no claim for immediate relief from all our present ills."

"We make no repudiation of the glowing but unfulfilled promises of our opposing candidates of four years ago nor present assurances of recovery within 24 hours from the depression which exists, but we do promise an earnest, sincere and determined effort under the leadership of a man whose courage is unquestioned and whose word is as good as gold to conduct our United States by policies as to bring a recovery from the ill-accustomed uncertainty and instability."

Mr. Mack said the governor "comes to this convention with the greatest number of states behind him in the history of the Democratic party," and asserted, "there never was a candidate who appealed to the whole country as this man has."

"A New York daily has said: 'How a man stands in his own home town is always important.' It is there that one goes for the final word on a reputation and a performance."

"I accept that test. I speak for the town of his birth and his present home. If that paper had consulted the election returns in 1930, it would have been fully informed as to what this town of Hyde Park thought of this candidate."

In citing the sweeping victory won by Governor Roosevelt in 1930, the nominator pointed out that he had received one of the 55,000 votes from New York city which swelled his majority.

He earned the greatest tribute ever paid a Democratic state, Mr. Mack said, by "the fearless courage with which he insisted and because he knew what was at stake and its people, he brought a politically hostile and defiant legislature to complete surrender—not by bluffing, blustering or parading, but because he knew the people's needs, what they wanted and why they wanted it and because, in addition, he possessed the gift of convincing the people back home that he was acting in their interest and that this judgment was sound and good."

"It was this ability to drive this fact home that made possible his splendid record in securing the legislation needed by the state."

The governor's nominator said that he "unconsciously perhaps" has been qualifying himself for the position for which he is about to be elected.

"He has first-hand information of the demands and needs of every state in the Union because he has been in every one of them. He knows the needs of the Pacific coast states because he built two naval bases there. He knows the situation and needs of the Rocky Mountain states. He knows at first hand the problems of the grain and cattle farmer of the plain states. He calls Georgia his other home state and has an intimate knowledge of the southern farmer and industrial worker."

He knows by personal experience the industrial and business problems of the east and midwest.

Democratic Convention Adjourns Until Tonight

Tammany Turns Down Roosevelt On Early Ballots

Chicago Stadium, July 1 (AP).—Tammany Hall turned thumbs down on Governor Roosevelt on the first two ballots for the presidential nomination in the Democratic convention today.

Mayor James J. Walker, whose future as chief executive of the country's largest city rests with Roosevelt, arrived late but in time to cast a vote for former Governor Smith on the first roll call. Pending before Roosevelt now are charges based on the legislative investigating committee findings that Walker should be ousted.

Not a vote in four of the boroughs of New York city, Kings, Queens, Richmond and Manhattan, went into the governor's column on the first two roll calls. One Nassau delegate, Charles Helwig of Lindenhurst, voted for Roosevelt and four votes from the Bronx were his. The others all were for Smith.

Chairman John F. Curry's surprise move, in calling for a poll of the delegation, created much speculation. It was generally believed he took that avenue of approach to be free of the accusation that he "delivered" any votes to a candidate.

On the first roll call Thomas F. Conway, former lieutenant governor of Plattsburgh, was absent, and his alternate, Thomas P. Ward of Saranac Lake, voted for Smith. Conway, aroused from sleep, arrived in time to vote for Roosevelt on the second ballot.

When the name of "Alfred E. Smith" was called, all eyes turned on the New York group but the candidate was outside in a radio broadcast booth and his alternate, John J. O'Rourke of Dongan Hills voted.

Henry W. Beer, in voting for Smith, said "I wish I had 100,000 votes to give him."

Of the 16 delegates at large, 5 went with the governor. They were Lieutenant Governor Lehman, Harlan W. Ripley of Rochester, Oliver Babana, Jr., of Buffalo, and Mrs. Daniel O'Day of Roe. Miss Elizabeth Marbury, national committee woman and delegate at large, was absent.

James J. Hoey of New York city became impatient when the announcement of the first roll call was delayed, and in a loud voice demanded that Chairman Walsh give it.

Bishop Cannon Promises Another Prohibition Revolt

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—With bitter words on his lips, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., turned his back once again today on the Democratic party, calling for repudiation in the south of the leadership which has espoused repeal, promising the drys will war without compromise.

His sentences rang with echoes of the call the bishop sent out, right after the 1925 Democratic convention at Houston, gathering the prohibition leaders to chart a course against Alfred E. Smith. That led to the repudiation of the solid south, as under Cannon leadership, Virginia and North Carolina went for Hoover, along with Florida and Texas.

Last night he announced: "Representatives of a large majority of the people of the nation who believe and insist that the Eighteenth Amendment remain unchanged, will shortly meet in conference and will determine what they consider to be the best method of procedure."

He set this meeting up against both national conventions, saying both were largely made up of delegates picked by political leaders, but no further reference to the Republicans was made. But he asserted:

"It goes without saying that there is not the slightest idea of yielding to this present day whiskey rebellion against the 18th Amendment. The war with the traffic in intoxicating liquors is an irrepressible conflict. These are simply battles in the war, in which there will be no retreat, no surrender, no compromise."

Dr. E. C. Dinwiddie, secretary of the National Prohibition Board of Strategy, also said today, leaders present at the convention would meet right after it is over, and lay plans for a thoroughly representative conference.

TE Auxiliary Meets July 5

Due to the fact that their regular monthly meeting date comes on July 4, the Ladies Auxiliary of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital will hold its July meeting on Tuesday, July 5, at 2:30 o'clock. Important matters will come up before the meeting and a large attendance is desired.

"Born on the wide banks of the Hudson in the little town of Hyde Park, country born and country loving, this man's whole political life is an open book. His reputation is unimpaired, his character spotless."

Three Fruitless Ballots Are Taken For Presidential Nominee

—Governor Roosevelt, Far Ahead of His Nearest Rival, Gathers Slowly Rising Majority on Each Succeeding Ballot—Weary After Hectic Night, They Continue Negotiations.

Vote by States On First Ballot

Barber Shop Hours

The following barber shops will remain open on Monday, July 4, until 12 o'clock noon: Ideal Tonsorial and Beauty Parlor, 510 Broadway; Ralph Arace, 355 Broadway; and Leotta's Tonsorial Parlor, 17 Railroad avenue.

A weary lot, they gathered in hotel conference rooms to go on with their negotiations—and an uncertain lot, too, for none of the best informed seemed to consider himself capable of saying with assurance just what might be in store the hours just ahead for the candidates, the convention, and the party.

Vote by States On First Ballot

Chicago Stadium, July 1 (AP).—After a tumultuous night-long session, the Democratic national convention felt into the tightening grip of a deadlock at dawn today, took three fruitless ballots for a presidential nominee, and then adjourned until tonight, to think it over.

Governor Roosevelt of New York far ahead of his nearest rival, mustered a slowly-rising majority on each succeeding ballot, but was unable to make real progress which his managers had predicted toward the two-thirds needed to nominate.

On the third ballot, the official count showed 682 for Roosevelt, 190 for Alfred E. Smith, 161 for Speaker Garner, 52 for Governor George White of Ohio, 40 for Melvin Traylor, 27 for James A. Reed, 24 for Harry Byrd, 23 for Governor Ritchie of Maryland, and 8 for Newton D. Baker.

It would have required, on this ballot 768 to nominate.

The Roosevelt managers, working like beavers among the weary delegates, had made inroads here and there, picking up votes by dribbles. At the same time some of the Roosevelt states were showing signs of wavering under the pounding counter-attack of the bloc of favorite sons.

The Missouri delegation, pledged to Reed, collapsed and topped most of its votes into the Roosevelt column.

The candidacy of Gov. Murray of Oklahoma lasted but one ballot; but when the governor himself released his delegates, they divided among other favorite sons, and none of them went to the New Yorker.

There were definite signs of agitation in the Texas and California delegations, pledged to Speaker Garner, with Roosevelt figuring as the most likely beneficiary should a real break come.

The inside circle of a convention leaders heard much of a combination involving the vice presidential nomination. Both Garner and William G. McAdoo, chairman of the California delegation, were mentioned in convention floor gossip as possible vice presidential nominees with Roosevelt.

Adjournment Until 8:30 Tonight.
The adjournment was until 8:30 p. m., but even as they filed out of the coliseum the leaders were carrying on into private conferences their efforts to arrive at some breakdown which would avert anything like the long deadlock eight years ago in Madison Square Garden.

Roosevelt's gains had been steady, small as they were. On the first ballot he had 565, on the second 577, and on the third 682. The additions on the second roll call had come from Indiana, Missouri, New York, North Dakota, Ohio and Alaska.

On the second ballot he took 2½ from Reed in Missouri, 1½ from Smith in New York, 2 from White in Ohio, and 1 from Smith in Pennsylvania.

His loss was a fraction of a vote in North Carolina and a vote in North Dakota.

At least some of the Roosevelt early ballot hopes failed entirely to materialize. Tammany, polling in the center of the convention floor just as the light of dawn was coming in through the high windows of the big stadium, went solidly to Smith. In Pennsylvania, the Roosevelt total was below the pre-balloting claims.

They went out of the stadium a very weary lot, all of them. They had sat through hours of oratory, even before the balloting put its added tension on them. They had marched and shouted in a series of midnight demonstrations which, en masse, probably set a mark for endurance.

A weary lot, they gathered in hotel conference rooms to go on with their negotiations—and an uncertain lot, too, for none of the best informed seemed to consider himself capable of saying with assurance just what might be in store the hours just ahead for the candidates, the convention, and the party.

STANDING OF CANDIDATES ON THE THREE BALLOTS

Chicago Stadium, July 1 (AP).—Here's how they stood on the three ballots:

	First	Second	Third
Roosevelt	565½	577½	682 79-199
Smith	20½	24½	190
Garner	9	9	161
White	52	52	161
Traylor	42	42	52
Reed	24	24	24
Byrd	23	23	23
Murray	22	22	22
Ritchie	21	21	21
Baker	8	8	8
Rogers	Blank	Blank	Blank

French Completing Plane for Flight Into Stratosphere

ELIASCOURT, France (AP)—France hopes within six months to enter the race for the conquest of the stratosphere.

In the Farman airplane works, on the banks of the Seine, behind bolted doors and gleaming machinery, engineers and skilled workmen are putting the finishing touches to a huge 500 h. p. monoplane.

Goal 1-50,000 Feet

When it is completed, the stratospheric airplane will be taken to the airport of Toussaint-Noble where the first test flight will take place. It will be followed by other experimental flights aimed at attaining a height of 50,000 feet above the earth's surface.

A feature of the new aircraft is its enormous wing area and its all-metal air-tight cabin which can accommodate three to four persons.

Its circular conning-tower surrounding the air-tight cabin gives it the shape of a submarine. Inside the cylindrical cabin is an instrument board and a dozen gadgets all suggesting the interior of a submarine.

Wing Surface Enormous

In building an enormous wing surface, the designers had in mind the fact that in the thin stratosphere where the propeller and wings are much less effective than at heights of 5,000 to 10,000 feet a good deal more lifting power may be required for successful operation.

If all the hopes of the designers are fulfilled, the machine, when at an altitude of 48,000 to 50,000 feet, will develop a speed of 480 miles an hour which will bring New York within eight hours of Paris.

Take-Off Difficulty Seen

It is pointed out that owing to its excessive load—it is equipped with five radiators—the new Farman may experience some difficulty in taking its ascension to the thin cold air is not expected to begin before a month, as the new machine will be subjected to various tests and alterations made accordingly.

Why Electric Rates Cannot Be Reduced

The following letter by R. B. Beal, president of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, to leaders of preferred stock is being sent in connection with the regular quarterly dividend of the corporation, July 1:

The new federal tax bill imposes a customer tax of 3 per cent on amounts paid for electrical energy for domestic or commercial consumption. The bill in effect makes the company an agent of the government for the collection of this special tax, since it requires us to collect the tax and turn it over to the government. The amount to be thus collected from the company's customers will be approximately $90,000 per year.

The same bill imposes additional taxes on the company and provides for other taxes which will effect immediate increases in cost. The total additional cost to be paid by the company is estimated at approximately the same amount as that to be paid by the customers, namely, $90,000 annually.

The company paid in 1931 for federal, state and local taxes the sum of $722,000, or at the rate of approximately 11 cents out of every dollar collected from its customers. This amount will be further increased by the new tax bill. The additional federal taxes, together with the certainty of increased state taxes during the year, are very serious factors in the discussion of future rate reductions and also create large additional fixed obligations to be paid out of earnings before payments to stockholders can be made.

Because of the vital importance of the question of taxation, you are urged, as a stockholder of this company, to use your influence to the fullest extent to bring about decreases in the cost of government in order that industry may be relieved of excess tax burdens as early as possible.

T. R. BEAL,
President.

Corrects Statement About Bishop Cannon

Chicago, July 1 (AP)—The Associated Press corrects a statement made June 26 to the effect that Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Southern Methodist bishop, appealed to the Democratic resolutions committee for a declaration in favor of prohibition in the party platform.

The story should have stated that the veteran dry leader urged a law enforcement plank and asked that prohibition not be made a party issue or the subject of the plank in the Democratic platform.

Bishop Cannon today said this had always been his position and that he had opposed declarations for prohibition as well as declarations against prohibition in party platforms.

The Associated Press is glad to make this correction.

AUSTRALIAN "SECRET SIX" TO FIGHT BRIBERY SYSTEM

Sydney (AP)—Business men here with a secret inner council of six of Australia's leading citizens, have at the instance of the Rotary organization, formed an Anti-Bribery and Secret Commissions Protection League.

For some years bribery has been increasing. Business men found they had to pay "commissions" and give "presents," mostly to politicians, to obtain big orders and contracts. The inner council will lay traps for bribers and arrange for immediate prosecution.

For Each Food Order Place a Man at Work

Alfred Schwenk at the head of the aldermen here suggested one man for each food order in the streets. He said why it was not possible with an able-bodied man to get a grocery order at the city hall, the man is placed at work in the street. In the case of a man who receives a food order, he is given a certain amount of time and labor in placing the order in a confection. The holes in the street were not being filled in some weeks, according to the aldermen, and by using the able-bodied men to do that work would not take a job away from a man already doing laboring work for the city.

Ed and the Coed

By GENEVRA COOK

DELLA FARNUM, '33 brushed back the auburn curls that ran riot over her smooth forehead, and carefully adjusted the green band on her left arm. It was wonderful to be here at the University, to see the double row of Seniors in their black caps and gowns marching solemnly into the chapel, to know that in a few minutes she would be a part of that great procession, even though at the insignificant end.

She turned to the boy who was going to march beside her, his brand new green cap perched precariously upon rebellious wavy black hair. He smiled at her.

A ripple of "sh-sh-sh" went along the line, and the row of freshmen began to move. "I have a feeling," whispered the boy in her ear, "that I'm going to like college!"

Now after chapel the Freshmen girls left before the men, and Della found someone waiting for her on the steps. "Miss Farnum?" He was sure and slender. "You come from Windsor, I think? I met your cousin Ted while I was abroad this summer, and I told him I'd keep an eye on you, though, of course, I'm a Soph."

"Oh, yeah?" said Della—to herself. But she was a well-bred girl, and she put her hand out prettily to him. "How do you do, Mr. Craven?"

He looked at her in amazement. "Haven't you heard of me?" he asked, in pained and incredulous surprise. "I'm Lester Craven!"

"Mr. Craven," repeated Della calmly. It was plain that she had never heard the name before.

Lester Craven drew himself up to his full height—"Lester Craven," he repeated impressively. "Secretary of the Sophomore class. It was when I was abroad that I met you—"

His eyebrows lifted in polite amazement. Della had turned to greet Ed Hartley. "Mr. Craven," she began, "may I introduce Mr. Hartley?" Ed Hartley held out his hand, ignoring the introduction. Lester Craven gazed down at him from superior heights and said curtly, "Frosh! That Senior on the steps wants you to carry his bag."

"See you later," grinned Ed cheerfully to Della, as he went up the steps. It was an honor, Lester assured her, a mere Freshman, to be escorted to the dance that night by an officer of the Sophomore class.

It was late in the evening before she saw Ed Hartley. He danced merrily by her once, and smiled; twice, and winked; the third time he kept expertly directly behind the unconscious Lester, and over the green bow of his diminutive and also unconscious partner, he whispered, "They've got a tab on you. No Freshman allowed to—"

"Why do you put your head way over on my shoulder where I can't look at you?" broke in the voice of Lester.

Della lifted her eyes innocently to his. "Your profile is so stunning," she murmured. The flattered Lester turned his head even further to the front and Della continued the conversation undisturbed.

"When the lights go out," whispered Ed—another, neatly manipulated turn—"just slip away from him—a couple of feet—"

In the middle of the next dance, as she and Lester passed the door, it happened. There was a sudden darkness, excited little shrieks; Della stepped back from Lester, felt a strong arm guide her between dark shapes; then, breathless, they ran up the stairs and into a long empty hall. Already the lights were on again down stairs, the dreamy music of the orchestra drifted up to them, his arms were around her, and they danced.

"I swore," said Ed Hartley, "that I'd dance with you tonight! Gee, you're wonderful!" Della's eyes answered him.

At the end of that dance they slipped down the fire escape and Della stood quietly at the side door of the hall, where Lester found her.

For a week Lester scowled at Ed and surrounded Della with Sophomore adulation; for a week Ed winked merrily at her behind Lester's back. On Friday night the two classes met in their annual Mud Rush. From the sidelines Della watched the better-outfitted Sophomores fling volleys of waxy mud over the fighting Frosh.

For a time the battle wavered; then a crowd of Sophomores, mud-covered, almost unrecognizable, rose from the ground and fell upon the struggling Frosh, plastering their heads with mud. A voice from a huge megaphone boomed forth victory to the Sophomores.

Nonchalantly, spotless, Lester Craven sauntered up to Della Farnum. "Well, we won," he said complacently. He stooped over her. "To the victor belongs the spoils."

Suddenly, there was a noise behind him. He turned. There stood Ed Hartley, mud-covered, his hair plastered, his face spotted, his clothing torn, and one eye rapidly swelling to match the mud. With a large and condescending gesture Lester flung out his immaculate arm. "Here's your Frosh," he taunted.

"Yes," said Della a little unsteadily. "Good-by Lester Craven. To the victor belongs the spoils." And she left him standing there open-mouthed as he walked proudly off with Ed Hartley, tenderly wiping away with a dainty white handkerchief just enough mud for the sake of convenience.

City of Luxembourg on a Huge Rock
The city of Luxembourg, in the duchy of that name, is perched on a huge rock like a city castle and has been called the "Gibraltar of the North." Gloves and roses are the two great exports and currency is of French, German, Belgian and even English.

Two-Piece Ensemble

A woven mesh in hand-crocheted effect is the attractive material for this two-piece frock for the young lady's summer wardrobe. The easy drape and fullness in skirt and neckline are enhanced by the soft pliability of the fabric, known as "crochere."

SUMMER HATS ARE GAY AND COLORFUL

The hats of this year are enough to lift anybody's spirits. Maybe it's to take our minds off our troubles that they are so defiantly gay, so casually frivolous.

For street and sports wear this summer, the little brimmed vagabond straw-of-milan, leghorn, rough straws and Panama—are going to be away out in front. And they ought to be.

They're so smart and practical and tailored with their impudent little dips over the right eye, their necktie-ribbon bands, their simplicity.

One of the most popular straws for this kind of hat is exactly like that used in men's straws—rough and shiny and correct.

Wrap-around Is Smart and Very Practicable

Enter the wrap-around week-end wardrobe.

It's the latest thought of the Paris designers, and it's about the most sensible innovation of the day.

The idea is that the wrap-around coat-dress that can be opened out and folded flat is by far the simplest thing to pack without crushing. And if you have, whole set of them, you can jump off the train, change clothes and be ready for what the day brings without having to stop and wait for things to be pressed.

The wrap-around style has been developed in practically every variation or day-time dress.

Newest Pajamas Follow Lines of Evening Dress

Ever since the first hostess pajamas came into vogue the beach a few years ago, women have been discovering the joys of the pajama. The new 1932 version of the pajama is taking on disguises and appears as wholly appropriate for the woman who entertains in her own home.

The Paris version of the evening pajama sometimes looks like a pajama at the front but like a dress at the back. Sometimes its trouser lines are completely invisible. Many of the newer ones are so soft at the hem that there is not the slightest suggestion of a divided skirt at all.

HAT AND SCARF MATCH

By CHELSEA GIBBONS

Holka does continue to persist in the mode. Their latest models to invade the realm of millinery especially in the sports section are fac-and-scarf sets of dotted lace pose as a chief attraction. These are either white on a dark background or the order is reversed. Navy and white, brown and beige, red and white or green and white are outstanding combinations. Either the beret or the brimmed hat of polka-dot material is of a style and the scarf is emphasized because unusual importance is attached not only to the scarf but particularly to smart and original use of wearing it.

Gambler's Throw
by Eustace L. Adams

SYNOPSIS: Jerry Calloway and Nancy Matthews are stranded after a storm sweeps away the bridge over the river. Jerry is a gambler and Nancy is a girl who has been abandoned by her lover. They are both in a desperate situation and are looking for a way out.

Chapter 35
 SUPPRESSED HATE

"If you'll excuse us, we'll go out on the porch," Jerry told Ashwood. "We find the room crowded."

He turned to Nancy, who, repressing a start of surprise, rose instantly and put her arm through his.

"Why not, indeed?" agreed the cripple. "I think it is duly recorded in the 'Book of Etiquette' that the young couple should invariably sit for an hour or two gazing stargazed at the moonlight, if any."

Jerry stood there in hesitation, his self-control worn to a thin edge by the subtle taunts. If Ashwood had only been of Lucci's build! What pleasure he would take in beating him down! Nancy's slight pressure on his arm brought him back to reason. He bowed mockingly and followed his wife out into the darkness.

Hamilton swept his seven rows of cards together, placed the deck meticulously in the upper left corner of the table and, murmuring a conventional word of apology, left the room.

The wide, comfortable porch, in the utter quiet of the tropic night, was like a haven of peace after the throbbing intensity of the living room. Nancy stepped to the rail, silently surveying the long, sparkling path of moonlight across the black waters.

"What do you think Ashwood will do, Jerry?" she whispered.

"I don't know, Nancy," he answered honestly. "It hit him hard."

That's the only thing I'm sure of. I'm getting so I don't know what anyone will do. We're all strained to the snapping point. Word has percolated through the crowd that Ashwood is flying away from here tomorrow. There's been a lot of activity at the hangar all afternoon.

One-shot and Hamilton have asked me a dozen times whether we're going to be released tomorrow or not. Ashwood has said nothing about it and they're all afraid we're going to be left here while he gets away. If we have another hot night tonight, there's no telling what may happen. The whole place vibrates with suppressed hate."

"If he takes me away tomorrow, I'll jump out of his plane," she burst out passionately. "And if I'm tied in, I'll jump overboard from his yacht tomorrow night."

"He won't take you away," he declared firmly. "The first move he makes toward you in the morning I'll grab him with my two hands and break his back before his guards can pull a trigger. If I were positive he still had it in his mind I'd walk right in there and do it now."

"Please, Jerry," she whispered. "Aren't things bad enough now without your adding to them before it becomes necessary?"

He made no reply, being afraid that if he spoke at all, it would be to say too much. He dared not even look at her cameo-like profile, lest he loose the words which trembled upon his lips. For some moments they stood there in silence. At last:

"Nancy, you—you aren't worrying about—tonight, are you?"

"I don't know, Jerry," she confessed, hardly above a whisper. "I was watching Ashwood's face when he listened to your announcement. He's going to make it as difficult as he can for us, if only out of a perverse wish for revenge."

"Well," he ventured, cursing himself for his fumbling about in a difficult situation, "we'll have to make a pretense of being real—married, you know, or all this business won't do any good."

Why couldn't he express himself to girls as he could to men? If he were talking to a fellow, now, he'd have no trouble. But here he was, floundering like a silly kid, making it more difficult for her instead of less. His cheeks were hot, too. It was fortunate that the night his face. He'd give his share of the reward, right now, if Lucci or Malory were to stride out on the porch and give him someone to poke at.

"Listen, Nancy," he added. "You go to bed early. After you've gone to sleep I'll just creep in and stretch myself on the floor right against the door. You'll never know I've been there."

She was still silent. The pause seemed interminable.

"Poor little girl," he murmured.

Edward Bovington, who was born fertilization of the soil was recently determined by Dr. W. J. Humphreys, may have had other outstanding features, but the only thing recorded in Humphreys' calculations the amount of the epitaph cut in stone at his grave, fertilizers delivered to the soil each year by lightning at 770,000,000 tons. And, as the epitaph points out, that was a "wonderful thing."

His explanation of the connection between the fertility of the soil and lightning is that every time the lightning flashes, ozone, ammonia and oxides of nitrogen are produced in the atmosphere. These synthetic chemicals react with water in the air, and the part that lightning plays in the ber. In the goldenrod of the eastern meadows and roadside and in the guarule plant of the west he found two which would help out the rubber supply if necessary. Meanwhile, other inventors have been trying to develop a rubber in their chemistry laboratories. One such substance, according to the Scientific American, called Theloxol, is now proving practical.

It smells rather badly, so the housewife will not want to use it in the form of rubber gloves, hot water bottles or for other domestic purposes. But out-of-doors this difficulty is not so apparent. It has certain other values, however, which the natural rubber has not. It will not soak up gasoline or oil, and it will adhere to almost any other substance. More will probably be heard from this and other rubbers made by synthesis in the next few years.

THE PRIME MOVER.

Advertising is the prime mover of business, and if we as advertising people intend to do our job well we must know more about business in all its phases. We must rid ourselves of fear in selling. Modern products have been developed, our distribution machinery is working. Now all we have to do is compliment the buyer by asking him to purchase the good things, at fair prices, that we have to offer.

This was a statement made by Edgar Kobak at the Advertising Federation convention. It is only too true that people will not buy unless they know what they are going to get and that there will be good value for their money. The orgy of throwing cheap junk around on counters is about over. Sane buyers have found the stuff is no good. They are willing to buy sound goods at fair prices. They need only to be told where it is.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BY
 James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)
 HEAT STROKE

That body of yours can accommodate itself to the hottest day, perhaps to two or even three hot days without any trouble, but if the heat is prolonged beyond that, sometimes symptoms of heat stroke or heat exhaustion occur. It would seem that after a few days of hot weather the heat actually accumulates in the body, as it cannot get away by ventilation or evaporation.

In sunstroke the individual is struck down suddenly while under the direct rays of the sun; the skin is hot and dry, and faced flushed.

In heat stroke, however, as the symptoms are due to accumulation of heat in the body, the individual begins to feel weak or exhausted, and finally collapses. The skin is not hot and dry, but cold, and clammy, and pale.

It was really a heat stroke that killed 123 of the 146 British soldiers who were imprisoned in the Black Hole of Calcutta in 1756. The symptoms of the survivors here were intense thirst, great heat of the body, fast beating of the heart (palpitation), rapid and difficult breathing, delirium and unconsciousness.

The first thought in the treatment of heat stroke is to get the patient resting in bed. As long as he is lying quietly in bed, he cannot create much heat in the body, and that gives nature a better chance to get rid of the accumulated heat.

An ice bag to the head, and ice applied to the whole body for a short time until the temperature gets down to about 102 degrees F., warmth should be applied to the feet and body, with the ice bag still at the head. Hot drinks—tea, coffee, milk—should be given as soon as the patient becomes conscious.

The room should be made cool, and the air kept moving by open windows or by an electric fan.

When the breathing stops or is very difficult it may be necessary to produce artificial respiration by the Schafer method, mentioned a short time ago.

If the heart is weak, the doctor may have to give a stimulating drug by the hypodermic method.

The ordinary smelling salts—aromatic spirits of ammonia—will restore consciousness.

For the next two or three days following the heat stroke the patient should be given a very light diet and be fed at regular intervals.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO

July 1, 1912.—Peter Finn died at his home on Hasbrouck avenue.

Mrs. Edward Reitze of Newark, N. J., drowned at Legg's Mills.

Fred Weeks of Shokan and Miss Jane Van Steenburgh of West Hurley married at West Hurley.

July 1, 1922.—Roy H. Begg, physical director at local Y. M. C. A., left for Springfield, Mass., resigning as director here.

About one hundred employees of U. and D. railroad shops here walked out when the nation-wide strike order went into effect. There was no demonstration or disorder here.

Two negroes held up twenty others at Terry's brickyard and relieved them of their week's wages. As bandits fled one of victims grabbed gun and shot one of them who was removed to Kingston Hospital for treatment.

Mrs. William Dempsey died at her home on Delaware avenue.

Wells 3,000 Feet In Depth Yield Commercial "Ice" At Temperature Of 109 Below

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

(Associated Press Science Editor.)

New York (AP)—A new industry "ice mining" which produces ice from wells 3,000 feet deep—as being in the American southwest. The ice is solid carbon dioxide, 109 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Discovery of this gas in many places and adventures in drilling are reported in Mining and Metallurgy, the scientific journal of the American Institute of Mining & Metallurgical Engineers.

The strangest part of all is that there is no ice in the ground, nor is the gas itself even cold. Its temperature—"when not flowing"—is about 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

Expansion Produces Cold

But "when flowing" is an entirely different story. For the flow is due to expansion from enormous compression deep in the ground, and this expansion produces sub-zero cold. One mine is named the "ice cream well" because of the creamy ice which forms from expanding gas at its mouth.

Oil Domes Yield "Ice"

All these carbon dioxide wells are found in the "domes" or the "anticlines" of the oil fields. They have been located in Carbonera Dome, western Colorado, Harley Dome, near Westwater, Utah, and also in the same state in the Last Chance, the Willow Springs and the Farnham structures. They are found in the Wagon Mound area in New Mexico, and in large quantities near Tampico, Mexico.

One commercial well is in operation near Price, Utah. Another is under construction in western Colorado. The Utah well yields 98 per cent pure carbon dioxide. It is purified in absorbing towers and compressed three times, finally becoming a liquid.

This liquid is sprayed through nozzles. Part of the spray expands into gas, thereby producing additional cold that solidifies the rest of the spray into snow. Hydraulic presses squeeze the snow into commercial size ice cakes. These are stored in an insulated pit under ground.

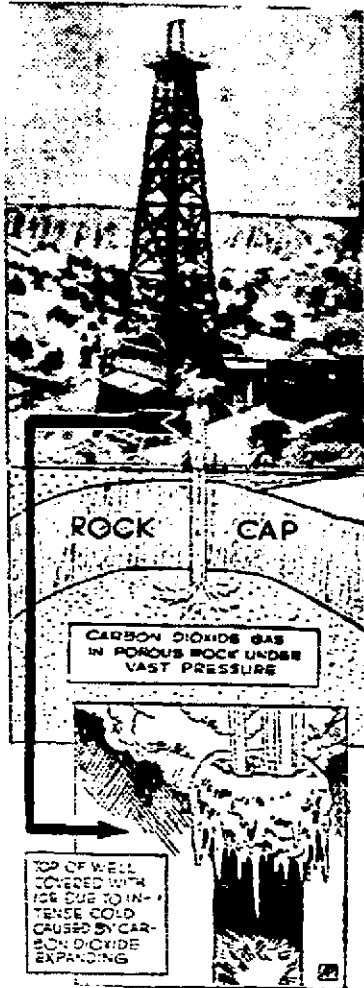

Diagram shows how carbon dioxide gas from 3,000 feet underground forms commercial "ice" as it expands when released from underground pressure at the mouth of the well.

Matters Before The Surrogate

Will of George H. Coons, who died at West Camp May 19, admitted to probate upon petition of Mary Elizabeth Coons, widow and Addie Coons, daughter in law, the executrices named. All the estate is bequeathed to the widow for use during her lifetime. Any remainder is divided among the son, daughter and various grandchildren. F. E. W. Darrow is the attorney.

The will of Emil Hoppe, who died in the town of Rosendale September 30, 1930, admitted to probate upon petition of Albert Hoppe, Baldwin, L. I., a son. The will, executed January 30, 1928, was written while the testator was an inmate of the Socialists' Old People's Home, Cottekill. Howard E. Reinheimer is the attorney for the petitioner. To each son, Albert Hoppe of Baldwin, L. I., and Otto of Bronx, N. Y., is bequeathed $200 and they are given certain personal property. The remainder of the estate is left to the Socialist Relief Society, New York city. The estate consists of personal property valued at not to exceed $1,500.

Will of Clarence T. Donohue, who died at Krumville May 17, admitted to probate upon petition of Florence S. Donohue, widow, the executrix. There is a small bequest to each of the three children, Gardner G., Clifford G. and Ruth T. Donohue of Krumville. The remainder of the estate, which consists of personal property valued at not to exceed $2,000 and real of not over $10,000, is left to the widow. V. B. VanWagonen is the attorney.

The State of New York National Bank is the executor under the will of Cecelia A. Francis, who died at Kingston May 8, leaving real estate valued at not to exceed $5,000 and personal of not over $1,000. Minnie L. Carrow of Kingston is the sole beneficiary. V. B. VanWagonen is attorney for the executor.

SHANDAKEN.

Shandaken, June 30.—Miss Daisy Patterson of Ithaca, N. Y., is spending some time with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ford are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son on Tuesday, June 28. Mother and baby are doing nicely in the Margaretville Hospital under the care of Dr. Maurer.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Osterhout and family and Daisy Patterson attended the Baccalaureate service at Kingston High School on Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Holden and son visited relatives in Haines Falls on Sunday.

Miss Dorothy Schmitz entertained a number of young people at her home here on Wednesday evening.

Miss Daisy Patterson, Mrs. F. S. Osterhout and daughter, Peggy, and Miss Margaret Hummel visited Miss Bertha Hunt at Arena on Tuesday.

Burroughs Blakeslee of Arkville was a supper guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Cleveland on Sunday.

Miss Helen Knight, who recently graduated from the Methodist Hospital, is on a case in Andes, N. Y.

Children's Day was observed in the M. E. Church here on Sunday. The church was beautifully decorated and the little folks took their parts very nicely.

Mrs. A. G. Brown entertained callers from Albany on Sunday.

Ralph Yerry is painting his house.

Dr. and Mrs. Irwin of Crosskill, N. J., are occupying the new house which is just being completed on the Bushnellville road.

Mrs. Fred Rosa and Mrs. Johnson and daughter of Phoenixia attended the graduation exercises at Margaretville on Tuesday.

Miss Phyllis Osterhout has been visiting Miss Camilla Davis at Olive Bridge for a few days and attending the commencement exercises at Kingston High School.

Admiral Kittelle and family of Washington, D. C., have arrived at their home here for the summer.

Max Brickman of Mountain Lodge Inn entertained at his home on Wednesday, June 21, in honor of his birthday. Delicious refreshments, including a large birthday cake, were served to about 35 friends and a group picture was taken by the local photographer, A. J. Lea. It was a most delightful party.

The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. Church purchased some new chairs for the church hall.

There was a meeting of the building committee on Monday night to discuss plans for enlarging the primary room of the local school. The work, in charge of Ralph Yerry, will soon be under way.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held at the church hall on Thursday, July 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Turner of Poughkeepsie were week-end guests of Mrs. Melissa Crispell.

The Home Mission Class will hold a food sale on Saturday, July 2. The proceeds will apply on cleaning up the old cemetery in back of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schiassker of Schenectady visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Valkenburgh, over the week-end.

Mrs. Fred Osterhout and daughter, Phyllis, and Miss Patterson motored to Highland on Thursday to see Mrs. Osterhout's mother, who is ill.

Chile Fights White Plague

Santiago, Chile (AP)—The ministry of health in the junta government, has initiated a nation-wide campaign against tuberculosis, stating that the disease has been gaining ground rapidly in Chile. A special commission was put in charge of the drive.

SHOKAN.

Shokan, June 30.—Several members of the E. A. Shokan family have arrived at their summer home on the mountain road. On Tuesday morning a truck from Philadelphia brought a load of ice cream for use on the Shokan place, which for many years has been the headquarters of the family.

Bernard Dwyer of White Plains has been spending several days in the village while engaged in pruning the trees about the telephone trunk line in this section.

Communion services will be held in the Shokan Reformed Church on Sunday morning, July 3, at 11 o'clock, standard time, and at the Mt. Tremper Church on the same morning at 10:30 daylight time. Services will be conducted by the Rev. August Plass, pastor of the two churches.

Frank Nadal of New York city is sojourning at the Nadal homestead on the heights.

Mrs. Lulu M. Chase of the summer colony near Tice-ten-Eyck mountain has acquired two saddle horses for the use of the members of her family and their guests. The horses were brought here by Alvah Buley, superintendent of the Chase holdings, and his son, Alvah, Jr.

A number of local fans attended the baseball game at the athletic park below the dam between the Seneca and the Olive Bridge Farmers last Sunday afternoon. The local boys lost out to the visitors by a score of 11-4.

Robert Hyde of Miami Beach, Fla., who has been spending a part of his vacation here and at Kingston, was accompanied to Shokan by his brother, Will, of Connecticut the other day. Both Will and Bob ran across many acquaintances while visiting in their old home town. Bob has a great coat of Florida tan, acquired in the course of his duties as a swimming instructor and life-guard at one of the Miami baths. Things were pretty quiet on the east coast this season, Mr. Hyde says.

Arnold Dickinson of Poughkeepsie was a business caller in the village last Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis of New York city are rusticated at the Elva Bogart farm on the mountain. Mrs. Ellis is a niece of Mrs. Bogart and a grand-daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Smith. Her great grandfather was Doctor Hull, of Olive, who was one of the best known physicians in Ulster county. It was in Dr. Hull's office on the old Plank Road, a few rods below the present Ashokan railroad station, that John Burroughs studied medicine as a young man.

Judge David L. Windrum of Shokan has married two couples since June 15. On the 18th he united Roy Every, who until recently lived in Shokan, and Martha Smith of Kripplush; on the 25th the judge officiated at the nuptials of Orrville Palen and Mathilda Stecker, both residents of the town of Hurley.

Edward Leyder has partially recovered the use of his injured ankle and was able to do a little haying on Tuesday.

Sydney Vandervent of New York city was a week-end visitor to the Vandervent country home on the mountain road.

The ladies of the Ashokan M. E. Church Aid Society held another food sale at the corner store last Saturday afternoon. The sale was not as well patronized as the preceding one on account of the unfavorable weather.

A local wedding of July 1, 1930, was that which united Charles V. Sneedeker to Mrs. Emily Constable, both of Olive Bridge. The Rev. C. G. Gorse, pastor of the Shokan M. E. Church, was the officiating clergyman.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sharwell, of Norfolk, Va., were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. Sharwell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Bell, and sister, Miss Chloey Bell. The Sharwells have many friends here who were glad to see them in Shokan again. They motored up from Norfolk, taking three days for the trip and enjoying the scenery and points of interest at their leisure.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Secor of Kingston are again at their summer home near the corner in the village.

The front page feature story in last Sunday's Herald-Tribune magazine was a contribution, "Beer and Graft," by Dennis Tilden Lynch of Shokan and New York city. Mr. Lynch's article was the third in a series of "Shall the Underworld Rule?" Mr. Lynch, whose family is now in Shokan, is considered an authority on economics and politics; he is the author of such widely circulated books as "Boss Tweed—The Story of a Grim Generation," "Grover Cleveland—the Man Four Squares," etc. The Lynch place on the upper mountain road was originally the Henry Bogart farm, and more recently it was owned by Francis T. Gilling, an artist who specialized in building and campus models.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moran of The Bronx were callers last Sunday at the home of Mrs. Moran's father, Francis Hughes, and sister, Mrs. S. Nadal.

Elmer Bedell is harvesting the hay crop on the Otto Grossman farm in the west end of the village.

Ephraim Weeks and Earl Brundage are among the "early birds" in getting their buckwheat ground sowed.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement Dwyer of New York city are sojourning at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Marle. Mr. Dwyer is a former resident of Shokan, being a son of the late J. Paulding Dwyer of the old village.

The Wheatstone bridge, a leakage detector invented and brought out last year, is being used on the telephone trunk line between Kingston and Delaware county.

At the special meeting of the local fire association held in the hall on Monday evening, June 20, it was decided to purchase the chemical pumper which was given a public demonstration a short time ago at the Ashokan railroad yard. On Tuesday last, Chester Lyons and Frank Jones of Ashokan journeyed to Syracuse for the purpose of inspecting a fire engine, and their report to the advisability of purchasing this additional equipment will be heard at the next regular meeting of the association, which will be held on Tuesday evening, July 5. It is understood that the fire apparatus will be stored in a building which is to be donated for the purpose in the lower village.

On July 1, 1872, the board of excise commissioners met at the house of Lemuel Boice to hear complaints, grant licenses and receive tax monies. The amount of money received from liquor licenses on that day was $245. On the 15th of the month the board met at the same place to consider a complaint against a prominent hotel keeper of Olive City for selling liquor on a Sunday.

Joe Saxon, who resided at Ashokan last summer and who more recently has been employed at a boarding house near Fleischmanns, has secured a good position as assistant superintendent of an apartment house in Mt. Vernon.

Leonard F. Ruckert, the well known local groceryman and meat dealer, is picking string beans from his productive garden near the corner.

On Tuesday a traveler, foot-sore and weary stopped at the store and asked to rest a while, claiming he could go no farther. The stranger said that he had walked all the way from New York city, a statement well supported by the condition of his feet which were badly blistered. Mrs. Winchell fixed the man up with refreshments and a bed for the night and told him to stay till he was fit to travel again. His was a story of real hard luck; he had for years been employed in the largest bank in New York city, but had no work for eighteen months, and by remaining in the city in the hope of getting something to do he had used up all his money until today he has only a nickel to his name. This man has never done a day's manual labor in his life, yet he is willing to do anything for his board and lodging. His greatest regret is that he did not strike out into the country long ago, when he still had funds enough for investing in a small business.

Mrs. Mathilda Kreker and daughters of Montclair, N. J., arrived in Shokan on Tuesday to spend the summer at their country place.

Mrs. Emma Holden and daughter, Mrs. Monaco, together with the latter's children are again at their bungalow on Van Steenburgh Hill. Mrs. Harriet Cunningham, who a few weeks ago removed to Shokan from Cedarhurst and for the past month has occupied the cottage belonging to Lewis Thiel, has gone back to the city, having been called home by the illness of her mother. Mrs. Cunningham's sister, Mrs. Reilly, who last week moved into the William Shults cottage has also returned to her home. Burtis Wheat, local truckman, transported the household effects of the two ladies to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Longyear spent a few days in New York city recently. The Longyears, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. Longyear's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Longyear, planned to return to their home in Grand Rapids, Mich., on Thursday in order to avoid the holiday traffic on the roads.

There is a lively demand for real estate in the north reservoir section at the present time. Small lots for camps and refreshment stand purposes being particularly sought after by city people. Two new stands are in process of erection between here and Kingston, one of them being at the castle place near Glenford and the other near the viaduct at Stony Hollow.

VALET TO EX-KAISER'S MUSTACHE MALE AT 71.

Berlin (AP)—Francis Haby, who for 26 years kept the Kaiser's mustache turned up, is hale and hearty at 71.

Haby accompanied Wilhelm II on all the monarch's travels. It was his daily task to see that not a hair of the imperial mustache was out of place.

Haby was the inventor of a face strap which, worn at night in conjunction with a liberal application of lotion, made the mustache points stick up as stiff as a bayonet.

MacDonald Gift to Spain.

El Toboso, Spain (AP)—Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, has contributed a valuable copy of Don Quixote to the local Cervantine library which contains 3,000 editions of the book in every known language.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moran of The Bronx were callers last Sunday at the home of Mrs. Moran's father, Francis Hughes, and sister, Mrs. S. Nadal.

Elmer Bedell is harvesting the hay crop on the Otto Grossman farm in the west end of the village.

Ephraim Weeks and Earl Brundage are among the "early birds" in getting their buckwheat ground sowed.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement Dwyer of New York city are sojourning at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Marle. Mr. Dwyer is a former resident of Shokan, being a son of the late J. Paulding Dwyer of the old village.

The Wheatstone bridge, a leakage detector invented and brought out last year, is being used on the telephone trunk line between Kingston and Delaware county.

At the special meeting of the local fire association held in the hall on Monday evening, June 20, it was decided to purchase the chemical pumper which was given a public demonstration a short time ago at the Ashokan railroad yard. On Tuesday last, Chester Lyons and Frank Jones of Ashokan journeyed to Syracuse for the purpose of inspecting a fire engine, and their report to the advisability of purchasing this additional equipment will be heard at the next regular meeting of the association, which will be held on Tuesday evening, July 5. It is understood that the fire apparatus will be stored in a building which is to be donated for the purpose in the lower village.

Jantzen are Always Youthful

No question about it—there's youthfulness in every trim line of a Jantzen. True artistry of design and faultless fit have captured that elusive quality. And they retain it for you, permanently. You're at ease—you look your best in a Jantzen. Styles and colors are exceptionally smart—see the Formal, the Sunbather, the Shouldaire, the Sun-Basque! And so smoothly, so perfectly, so comfortably do they mold to your body that they seem to be made for you and you alone. Jantzen quality is the highest and prices are the lowest in Jantzen history.

MANICAPERS.

The ninth annual summer school for rural manicapers was held July 15 to 20 at the Kingston Hotel.

Uncle Sam says that of all the mathematics he ever taught he has never had so many who were unable after the first lesson.

Permit me to point out a mistake of today's manicapers. Before they begin a manicure, they should first ask the customer for a manicure.

Young manicapers are being cultivated in the city and will repeat three or four times the latter part of the manicure and a cover.

Walter W. Kinsella of Hilton says the dairy and the tests showed a difference of 200 pounds of milk and 200 pounds of fat between his best and poorest cows. He sold the best milk.

When a pasture is plowed and reseeded, it takes about ten years for it to reach its peak yield. When about 500 pounds of superphosphate is added to the acre, the peak yield is reached in two seasons.

After chicks are about six weeks old, they are ready for the range and then the poultryman wishes for a feed hopper. The Cornell bulletin E-215 describes how to make a range feed hopper which accommodates about four to five hundred birds. It includes, in addition to directions, a complete bill of materials. Ask the office of publication of the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y., for a copy. It is free.

ALLABEN.

Allaben, June 30.—George I. Smith, who has been staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Townsend in Foxdale, for some time, has returned to Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. L. Earl, Mrs. Ida Jones and daughter, Virginia, have gone to Halcottsville, where they expect to remain during the summer vacation. School Superintendent W. J. Andrews, of Olivera, spent Wednesday here on business.

W. Prior, Jr., and family of East Orange, N. J., are now at their summer home.

Miss Anna Kelly of Jersey City is spending her vacation at the home of her uncle, G. E. Ennst, in Broadstreet Hollow.

La Grange Farm has quite a number of city guests at present.

L. Kinsella and Mrs. W. J. Kinsella, who have been in New York City for a few days, have returned to their home here.

A number of Allaben people attended commencement exercises at Fleischmanns Monday evening. Miss Evelyn Harbig was one of the graduates at that time.

Weldon Woolheater, who has been a resident here for some time, has moved back to Pine Hill.

Among recent Kingston visitors from here were W. Holden, Mrs. Ada Irwin and Mr. and Mrs. P. Hackett. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pederson of Brooklyn are now occupying their cottage and expect to remain there during the summer.

A dance will be held in Shandegnon Hall Saturday evening, July 2.

E. Gormley of Phoenixia was an Allaben caller Wednesday.

Mrs. M. Stony and children called at the Herdman home one day recently.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Webster are visiting relatives and friends in Hartford, Conn. They also expect to go to Newark, N. J., before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Lane of Lanesville were in town Tuesday.

TITLED FRENCH WOMAN OPENS RITZY NIGHT CLUB

Blarritz, Franco (AP)—Another lady of quality has joined the titled business people here, the Marquise de Casa-Montalvo having opened a ritzy night club.

When the marquise was asked about his wife's venture he said: "It's none of my business. I go there only as a customer."

The only other real marquise in business here is the Marquise de San Carlos who not long ago became a milliner.

Wet Finland Temperate

Helsingfors (AP)—Statistics covering the first six weeks after repeal of Finland's prohibition laws showed a decrease of 50 per cent in arrests for public intoxication and no murders due to drunkenness.

HUNGARIAN NAZI FORMING

HITLER FORCE IN BUDAPEST.

Budapest (AP)—Zoltan Mekeo announced in parliament that he was introducing Hitlerism to Hungary. Expressing his dissatisfaction with politics which he said had brought Hungary to the verge of ruin, Mekeo said he was forming a national socialist party.

The new organization is called the Hungarian national socialist farmers and workers party. It plans close cooperation with the Hitlerites of Austria and Germany.

Lyonville Church.

In the Reformed Church next Sunday afternoon at 2:15 the Rev. Thomas S. Brantworth will officiate, giving a communion service, after which the communion will be administered. All are welcome.

ASSASSIN'S NOVEL BARRED BY FRENCH POSTAL BUREAU.

Paris (AP)—Information that a novel, "The Romance of a Cossack," by Paul Gergeloff, clerk of Peace Court, was to be placed on sale in France by a German publisher, led to prompt action by the French government. Orders were given to the postal authorities to prevent the introduction of the book into France.

Elze Berlin Mail Jaunt.

Wandsee, Germany (AP)—The electric railway which connects Berlin with this lake resort will soon have the longest rails in the world, stretching an extra 104 1/2 feet between points. The work falls expected to insure smooth riding.

Manila Police Eye Soviet Visitors, but Trail Wrong Man

Manila (AP)—Philippine police kept their watch on the captain of two Soviet fishing trawlers who visited Manila recently, but they trailed the wrong man.

Members of the crew explained that the real boss of the vessel was a sailor who was "president" of the Soviet committee. The two captains were merely navigating officers. Filipino Communists serenaded the ships with a brass band, an affair which aroused suspicious among the police. Although no effort was made to prevent an interchange of visits.

BROWN STATION.

Brown Station, June 30.—Camp Crawford near the Flood place is nearly ready for occupancy. It will accommodate about 25 or 30 people, both children and adults. The buildings are well equipped for ideal camp life, two large fireplaces and a screened sleeping porch being some of the pleasing features. The "still water" of the Hoopes creek furnishes boating, fishing, swimming and other pleasures for the children who will be well looked after.

Mrs. James Bishop of Plainville, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stadel of Southington, Conn., are spending some time at the De-Hille Cottage. Mr. Stadel has been a contractor and builder in Southington and Cheshire for a number of years.

Mrs. Roy Caniff and daughter, Claire, have returned to their home in Scarsdale, N. Y., after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Burdett.

Mr. Brenner of New York City visited his summer home here over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Melloy and family, Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Burman, Miss Frances McFarlan, Sterling Crowder, William Higgins, Harry Hines, all from New York City, were recent guests at We-Grow-A-Farm, which is conducted by Mr. and Mrs. James Cook.

Plain Names of Signers

Among the signers of the Declaration of Independence there were six Johns, six Georges, six Williams and six Thomases.

Phone Service in Jungle.

Resistencia, Argentina (AP)—The Gran Chaco may be a jungle wilderness but its residents can now talk to the world. Telephone circuits were recently hooked up for a conversation between this capital of the Argentine Chaco and Eastbourne, England.

You can't fool the "Electric Ear..." New TYDOL wins anti-knock road Test of 17 gasolines Test car with analyzer and sound recording units... Equipment truck of the Western Electric Company... ready to test 17 gasolines bought in the open market.

* ELECTRIC EAR KNOCK CHART

The "ELECTRIC EAR" is the popular name for the new and amazingly accurate instruments which record sound in decibels. The "Electric Ear" was perfected by the Electrical Research Products, Inc. These same super-sensitive instruments were used by the Noise Abatement Commissions of America's leading cities.

This test conducted and computed by ELECTRICAL RESEARCH PRODUCTS, INC.
Subsidiary of WESTERN ELECTRIC COMPANY

A DECIBEL is an engineering unit denoting volume and intensity of sound. In these tests, lowest decibel rating (New Tydol) indicates best anti-knock gasoline.

A HOT engine, a heavy load, a steep hill—there's the real test of anti-knock quality. Laboratory knock ratings are apt to go hay-wire under these real road conditions—as every motorist knows.

So the new Sound Meter—the "Electric Ear" of the Electrical Research engineers—made this amazing test on the road, the first of its kind.

It caught every knock in each of 17 gasolines—all non-ethyl gasolines, all bought in the open market from road-side stations. It registered that knock. Hour after hour, for 3 days, the "Electric Ear" checked and triple-checked every gasoline.

Same car. Same load. Same speed. Same grade... but what a difference in knock rating! Look at the decibel chart. You'll see where the New TYDOL stands—It heads the list in real anti-knock quality.

The chart doesn't show its speed and pick-up, its instant-starting, its super-power and extra mileage. But your first trial run will show them to you—plainly.

Try it today. Against any gasoline. And get extra-fare transportation at the regular price.

Kingston: "Society Girl" and "Musical Revue and Kapers" on the stage. The talkie is something to see. James Dunn and Peggy Shannon are the featured players, and are surrounded by an exceptional cast. The plot concerns a society girl and her affairs. She shocks her friends with her acquaintances, until she goes the limit and falls for a prize fighter. What happens makes interesting entertainment. Spencer Tracy is also in the cast. The Musical Revue is presented by the Helen Cashin School of Dancing.

Orpheum: "Symphony of Six Million." Grand entertainment from the pen of Fannie Hurst. A story of the poor people of a great city, realistically showing their loves, hates, ambitions, and desires. The cast includes Ricardo Cortez, Irene Dunne, Anna Appel and Gregory Ratoff.

Broadway: "Merrily We Go To Hell." One of the best of this year's screen offerings, due to the excellence of the acting, and the novelty of the story. Frederic March is brilliant in the role of a devil-may-care newspaper reporter, who loves and wins one of society's most glamorous debutantes, played by Sylvia Sydney. How he loses her love and wins it back again forms the plot structure of this talkie. "Skeets" Gallagher and Adrienne Allen are also in the cast.

Ritz: "Night Court."

Tomorrow.
Kingston: "Forgotten Commandments." The cast in this dramatic talkie offering includes Irving Pichel, Sari Maritza, Gene Raymond, and Marguerite Churchill. An added attraction will be the much discussed Schmeling-Sharkey fight pictures.

Orpheum: Same.
Broadway: "The Strange Case of Clara Deane." Splendid entertainment, the type of talking picture that offers an audience something worth while. It's the story of mother love in which the sacrificing mother is caught in a chain of circumstances from which there seems to be no escape. Wynne Gibson gives her finest performance as the mother, and the work of Cora Collins, a child performer, classes her as one of the finds of the season. Frances Dee and Dudley Digges are in the supporting cast. Something to see.

Will Pay $35,000
For Return of Son

St. Paul, July 1 (AP).—Willingness to pay $35,000 ransom for the return of his kidnaped son, Haskell Bohn, 20, was expressed today by Debbard C. Bohn, wealthy refrigerator manufacturer of St. Paul.

Young Bohn was seized by two armed men yesterday morning at the garage of his home, blindfolded and thrust into an automobile. The kidnapers left a note demanding $35,000.

"I will pay the $35,000 ransom demanded for my son," said Mr. Bohn. "I will keep lanes open to encourage the kidnapers to end negotiations."

"The return of my son is what I want. It is all I have in mind." Police expressed belief the kidnaping was planned by St. Paul gangsters, who brought in two outsiders to do the actual abducting.

Unfortunate Expedition
There were 120 ships in the Spanish armada which attacked England in 1588; only 54 survived the expedition to return home.

The small son of the house was chatting on the front porch with the young man who had called to see his big sister. "Daddy says you are like the month of June," confided the youngster, "cause when you come in Mar goes out."

So little. It takes so little to make us sad. Just a slighting word or a doubting sneer.

Just a scornful smile on some lips held dear; And our footsteps lag, though the goal seemed near.

And we lose the courage and hope we had— So little it takes to make us sad. It takes so little to make us glad; Just a cheering clasp of a friendly hand.

Just a word from one who can understand; And we finish the task we long had planned.

And we lose the doubt and the fear, we had— So little it takes to make us glad.

While visiting the deaf and dumb school, a friend of mine was given an opportunity to ask the children questions. One question, he wrote on the blackboard was: "What is your idea of forgiveness?"

After a short pause one of the curly-headed little boys, who could neither hear nor speak, raised his hand and the teacher motioned him to the blackboard. The little fellow wrote: "My idea of forgiveness is the fragrance a violet sheds on the heel that crushes it."

Lady in Baker's Shop—Your French rolls are really far too small. I can put a whole one into my mouth at once.

Baker—I can quite believe that, madam, but it's not the fault of the French rolls.

Our idea of an untimely proverb is the one about turning swords into plowshares when the farmers have no more room to store their wheat.

Some persons are content to be comfortably fixed, while others can't be happy unless they can sit in the lap of luxury.

Aunt Hetty—Sakes alive, I don't believe no woman could ever be so fat.

Uncle Cyrus—What you readin' now, Hetty?

Aunt Hetty—Why this paper tells about an Englishwoman that lost two thousand pounds.

Tailless cats are reported to be disappearing from the Isle of Man. Probably because they never had a definite end in view.

A specialist declares that noise is making us a nation of nervous wrecks. Especially the noise of eating soup and celery.

The farmer was delivering vegetables to the sanitarium. A patient saluted him:

Patient—You're a farmer, ain't you?

Farmer—I allow that I am.

Patient—I used to be a farmer once.

Farmer—Did yuh?

Patient—Yes. Say, stranger, did yuh ever try bein' crazy?

Farmer—No, I reckon I never have.

Patient (as the farmer started to move on)—Well, you oughta try it. It beats farmin' all hollow.

If Columbus came looking for America now, he would find it hiding behind a billboard. Love makes the world go round. But for that matter, so does a good swallow of tobacco juice. Too many people classify their friends by race, rather than by personal characteristics. Radicals comprise that breed of politicians who hate their party every day in the year except election day. Congressional records are getting thicker and thicker. No depression there.

Elinor Glyn, Youthful Grandmother, Says Mind Can Conquer Father Time

Budapest (AP)—Elinor Glyn has discovered the fountain of youth. As great that Ponce de Leon took the young path she points to her lack of wrinkles, to the still flaming coils of her red hair, and to the fact that she is the grandmother of five children.

The woman who gave "it" a new significance in the English language, admits only half of her present good health to the mud baths which she takes here. She says the other half of the battle against Father Time must be won in the mind.

"What does it matter," she asks, "how long a woman has lived on this earth if her mind has not grown dull?"

Mrs. Glyn chose Hungary for the setting of one of her novels, and Hungarian aristocrats, noted for their charm and hospitality, have made a heroine of her.

Yet what she declares to have been two of the most thrilling moments of her life came on a recent visit to Elizabethtown, a workman's suburb of Budapest.

She attended a religious drama presented by a cast 80 per cent of whom were unemployed, to raise funds for a new church. As a prologue, four trumpeters heralded a lovely young girl, in national costume, who welcomed Mrs. Glyn with a speech in French. The guest re-

ELINOR GLYN

Preserving Fresh Fruit for Winter

Now that fresh home-grown fruit of various kinds are on the market we all have an abundance of them. However the Ulster County Home Bureau has a suggestion to make to enable everyone to have fresh berries next winter.

A simple method of preserving raspberries, blueberries, sour cherries and red currants does not even require cooking. The fruit must be ripe and in perfect condition. Prepare the fruit, weigh it, and for each pound allow one and one-fourth pounds of sugar. Put the fruit and the sugar in a bowl and crush them together with a heavy spoon. It is essential to crush every single berry. Set the fruit in a cool place for twenty-four hours, and stir it occasionally. When all the sugar is completely dissolved, place the berries in clean, cold jars, seal them, and store them in a cool dark place. The finished product is much like the fresh fruits, and berries prepared this way are excellent for shortcake. The important points to remember are that every berry must be crushed and every grain of sugar dissolved.

Meeting of Holstein Club Held Tuesday

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Ulster County Holstein Club was held at the New Paltz Grange Hall, Tuesday evening with sixteen members present. President B. H. Decker of Wallkill presided.

Dr. H. F. Fleming, chairman of the Club Fair Exhibit Committee, reported on the progress made to date.
He stated that suitable animals could be found to make up a county herd for the State Fair. Thereupon the club voted unanimously to send such a herd to the State Fair next fall.

Jesse Deyo of New Paltz was selected chairman of the committee in charge of the herd. Fred DuBois, Jr., of New Paltz, will take the herd to Syracuse and Albert Kurdt, manager of the Farm Bureau, will have charge of the necessary details in connection with loading the cattle.

It is now planned to exhibit the county herd at the Agricultural Field Day at Forsyth Park on August 31, and then ship them directly to Syracuse.

C. A. Stark of Stone Ridge, chairman of the Club Sales Committee, reported that plans for the Third Annual Sale to be held on October
7, were gradually being completed.
The final rules and regulations are to be announced in the near future.

ROXBURY

Roxbury, June 30.—Miss Mary
Adee of Walton, representing the Smaller Theatre of Stamford, was canvassing in town Tuesday. Miss Adee is heard in a program of songs each week over WGY, Schenectady.
Her next appearance will be at 2:30
p. m. Tuesday, July 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Easton are attending the Henderson reunion at Bovina Center today.
Evaageliet Roy Muir, of Muir
Lodge, who suffered a physical breakdown in March, has recovered and expects to be engaged in revival work in early fall.

Thomas Reilly, Miss Bertha Banker and Mrs. R. Banker attended the funeral of the latter's sister-in-law,
Mrs. Helen Sagendorf, at Sidney
Center on Monday.

The Community Gospel Church of Grand Gorge will conduct an all day camp meeting, July 4, on the grounds adjacent to the church.
Services will be held at 10:30 and 1:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Finley J. Shepard and servants are expected at "Kirk-side" for over the Fourth of July.
Announcements have been issued of the marriage of Miss Mildred
Preston, popular teacher of the Roxbury Central School, to Bruce Caswell at Easter time.

Veteran of the White Tops With Main Circus
When the Walter L. Main circus comes to Kingston Saturday it will have with it the oldest living circus man still in active management. For more than fifty years Walter L. Main has either been ahead of or back with the circus bearing his name and which was founded in 1879 by his father. There have been older circuses but none since the Robinson family retired and the Robinson circus was permanently placed in quarters. Main first started under his father as an assistant manager and when a mere lad, at 22, was the general agent of the circus. Then he assumed the management and later it became the Walter L. Main Fashion Plate Circus and was placed on the rails where it has remained ever since. During all these years Main has been with the show and will be with it when it exhibits here. He is 72 years of age, still hale and hearty and save for the year when he was in Europe while the Pennsylvania railroad was rebuilding his show which was entirely demolished in a wreck en route to Tyrone, Pa., in 1882, he has never allowed any one else to manage it. He is now enjoying most of his time in visiting old acquaintances in the cities visited and it would be a difficult matter for the show to be in any city east of the Mississippi and not find someone every day who either earned their first free circus ticket by carrying water for the elephants or being regularly employed with the circus.
When an old timer thinks of circuses in this vicinity he knows but three. Sig. Santolles, Frank A. Robbins and Walter L. Main. For years these were the big three of the smaller cities and towns and of the three but Main remains. This season he has however one of the Robbins Brothers with him, the owner of the Robbins Bros. circus, a western circus making its first visit to the east. It brought its menagerie, two big spectacles, "Alice in Wonderland" and "Historic America" and Goliath, the largest living land animal. The two circuses also have an added attraction in Bill Cody, a grandson of Buffalo Bill, who has been a famous picture star with both Universal and Monogram and who came direct to the circus from picture making in Hollywood.

FASHIONS by ELEANOR GUNN

The All-White Accessory Is Chic

(Copyright, 1932, by Fairchild)

The growing importance of white collar-and-cuff set, ragged flowers, accessories with summer costumes is the rapidly tied organdie scarf, and recognized. Among the articles one even the cap turban in white organza choose a kerchief, a tailored tie.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

White leads in millinery for summer, in fabrics and straws as well as in felt.

The soft crown, often typified by a mesh construction, is important.

The rule of three governs the millinery silhouette—sailors, turbans and cloches.

Openwork shoes, such as the sandal opera pump, are best.

White mesh gloves or fabric gloves are smart alternatives.

Sports Clothes in One or Two Pieces

The one-piece style in sportswear has had a long and successful career and, though it is still highly approved, designers for fashionable women have been at work devising a return to that other sportswear favorite, the two-piece frock of overblouse type. At Le Touquet, recently, it was noted that those women who gave the impression of being ultra smart had elected to wear two-piece costumes. This draws attention to the fact that, while this two-piece mood has never been entirely absent from the sports groups, it is now time for it to become a more important part of the general scheme of things.

Pajamas Make Good Traveling Companions

New York—Whatever one chooses to wear at home, when it comes to traveling, pajamas are the best bet for sleeping purposes. On sleepers and in restaurants, one feels more suitably attired in them than in a nightgown. For week-ends, it seems to be expected that the guests come provided with pajamas.

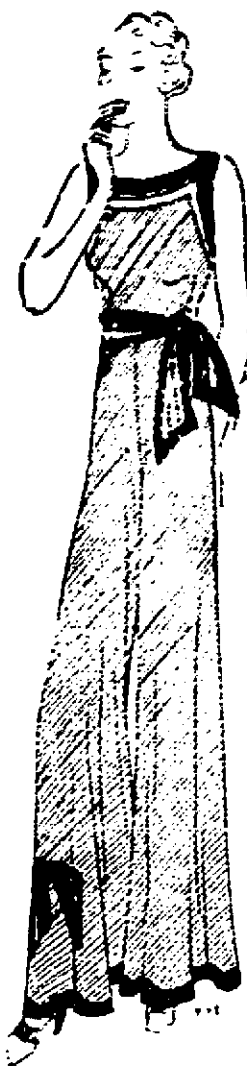

There are still all sorts of pajamas, but there are some women who refuse to be wooed away from the glove-like variety, which, it would appear, possess all the virtues pajamas should possess. Sticking one's nose into June nightgowns reveals the fact that brides usually give a divided vote on sleeping garments. There are few trousseaus without a pajama quota in addition to nightgowns.

Most pajamas are ready for inspection over the breakfast tray or ready to go into midnight conferences or early-morning talk tests with one's hostess or guest. The 1932 type usually has a short but decorative jacket—a bolero or something of the sort—and has quite outgrown any notion that there should be a long and concealing coat.

There are no revolutionary developments in color. Pajamas intended for sleeping purposes have a dainty boudoir tint, while those intended for sleeping purposes have a of the day or night are, of course, colored accordingly. Both types show a strict avoidance of monotony. At least two colors seems to be the rule. It seems hardly necessary to state that there are, besides the usual number of silk models, any number of amusing cottons and linens, but all unite in being colorful.

The tuck-in blouse for the pajama is particularly well liked by slender-waisted young things, who are gathering in ye waistline while ye may, greatly to the envy of those whose waists are best left unaccented. Whether your pajamas have sleeves or not, is left for you to decide, although one feels that the sleeveless types are, perhaps, best. Exaggeratedly flared trousers are definitely passe, but they may flare moderately.

Hot Dogs Refreshed Roosevelt Family

Executive Mansion, Albany, July 1 (AP)—The start of the second ballot on the presidential nomination at the Democratic national convention brought cheers from Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and two of his sons seated near the loud speaker in the governor's study at 6:15 (eastern standard time) this morning.

"Hooray!" the governor's son, Elliott, shouted as Chairman Thomas J. Walsh in the Chicago Stadium ruled that Connecticut's motion to adjourn was out of order, since the second ballot had already started.

"Attaboy!" Young John chimed in, while the governor's laugh rang out. With pencils and paper, the Governor and Mrs. Roosevelt, the governor's mother, and Elliott and John sat near the loud speaker, adding up the totals.

The eleven from Missouri that switched over brought cheers from Elliott and John, and when one more Missouri vote was added their father joined in the gleeful laughter.

"Come on, boys," Governor Roosevelt called out once, when there was a delay.

"Wasn't that more votes than Smith expected?" someone asked, as the radio announcer read off 20 1/2 for the former governor.

"More, I think," Governor Roosevelt replied, "on account of those New York votes."

Four newspaper correspondents waited in a reception room across the hall from the governor's study. Mrs. Roosevelt, in a green evening gown, came to the door once.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but he'll have to keep you waiting. It's too bad that you had to be up all night."

When the total reached 666 1/2, one of the correspondents in the room across the hall remarked:

"Just a little over a hundred more to go."

Mrs. Roosevelt glanced around, smiled, and whispered:

"Shh!"

Although Governor Roosevelt could not be seen, his voice sounded as though he were not at all fatigued after a night of suspense. He laughed frequently and joked with the members of his family.

Several times during the night members of the household visited the garage where the newspapermen kept vigil.

Miss Margaret Le Hand, the governor's personal secretary, came out about 5 o'clock and found them eating hot dogs.

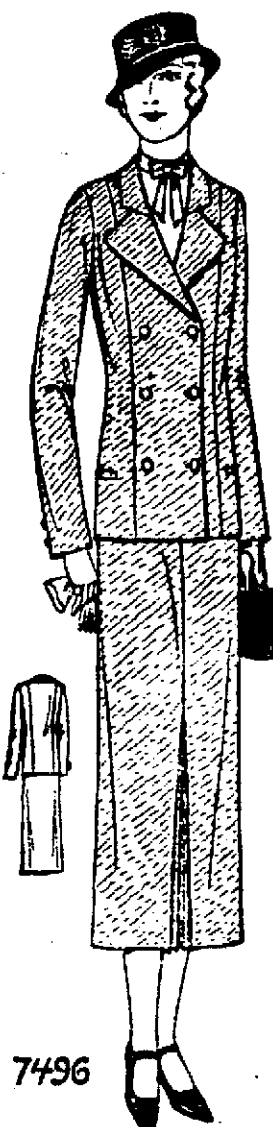

"We had hot dogs, too," she said, "at midnight."

Los Angeles "on the Sea"

Los Angeles is a seaport, having its harbor in San Pedro bay, which is connected with the main part of the city by a narrow strip of territory about 2 1/2 miles long. A long fight for a Los Angeles harbor within the city limits ended in 1900 by the annexation of the towns of San Pedro and Wilmington and the establishment of the harbor corridor.

A Popular Suit Style For The Larger Woman With Slender Hips

7496. Diagonal woolen in a dark blue shade was selected for this model. The jacket is double breasted, and with seams to the shoulders in front and back. It has a comfortable two piece sleeve. Broad lapels join a small coat collar in notches. This suit is also suggested for the new silk jersey weaves, and for linen or sheer woolens. The skirt is a two piece straight line model, with fan plait insert placed low at the centre front seam.

Designed in 8 sizes: 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52 inches bust measure. Size 44 will require 3 3/4 yards of 54 inch material. The jacket alone will require 1 3/4 yard and the skirt alone 2 3/4 yards. To line the jacket will require 2 1/4 yards of 35 inch material. For interlining 1/2 yard will be required. 1 1/2 yard of belting is required for a skirt band. The width of the skirt at the lower edge with plait fullness extended is 2 1/2 yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

DISHPAN BLUES

Here's a sure way to chase them

Woman's work is never done—especially dishes. No wonder so many women get the dishpan blues. Here's a new soap discovery that makes dishwashing easier and quicker. Its name is Oxydol and its secret is extra longer lasting suds—50% more suds—richer instant suds in any water, hard or soft. It fairly coats the grease from dishes.

Oxydol is great for clothes too. It SOAKS things more white without rubbing. And it's kind to hands and delicate fabrics.

Piccard's Wife 'Gives Back' His Promise To Let Him Fly Again Above Atmosphere

By EDUARD TRAUTS

Brussels (AP)—Behind Professor Auguste Piccard's plans for a second ascent into the stratosphere early in July lies a story of a husband's word to his wife not to risk his life again, and of her release from his promise when she realized how badly he needed to try again.

Hardly had Professor Piccard landed his balloon on the slopes of Gargi glacier, in the Tyrolean Alps, last year, and obtained a telephone connection with his wife in Brussels, before she requested a promise "not to try again."

Thankful for the successful termination of his efforts to fly higher than man had ever gone, outside the earth's atmosphere, he promised.

Promised No More Flights

The memory was fresh then of his and his companion's narrow escapes from death, first by suffocation in their airtight aluminum sphere which they could not open, and later by hunger and cold on the Tyrolean glacier.

At that time neither was in a mood to make a new attempt.

"Don't think now that I have eaten my word," Professor Piccard commented when announcing that he would himself pilot his balloon on his new excursion.

"I promised my dear wife to let the stratosphere alone, and not to expose her again to all those terrible hours of uncertainty and deadly doubt which were hers while I was up so high on what, despite our precautions, was a hazardous expedition."

Regretted His Promise

"When I began my preparations for construction of a second gondola I did not think of piloting the balloon myself, but by and by I regretted having to let someone else conclude my work."

"And then my wife, who followed day by day the progress of my preparations, became impressed by my own conviction in the safety of this second undertaking, and one day spontaneously gave back the word I had given her. It is with her full consent that I undertake this second ascent of any danger whatsoever, but in this instance every possible measure to avoid a surprise or a mishap has been taken."

Guard Against Mishaps

The experience of the first ascent has led to construction of a gondola in which possibility of entangling of the rope connecting the interior of the gondola with the balloon's safety valve has been eliminated.

"Nobody can say of an expedition like this that it is altogether deprived range to keep an automatic record of the changing influence of the cosmic rays during our ascent.

"The mishaps which beset us before are impossible, I believe, on this second ascent. I am confident that the adventure will prove entirely safe for myself and my assistant, Max Cosyns."

"We have been able, too, to minimize possibility of a broken thermometer, to combat the heat developed in the gondola by the bright sunshine of the upper air and to ar-

New Loves

By H. IRVING KING

MISS SELINA BRIGGS lived on Cape Cod. To be precise in Sandport. The house she lived in was the real thing in early Colonial architecture—it had a "lean-to." The family was small, consisting only of herself and her orphaned niece, Henrietta. Miss Selina had squandered her savings in giving Etta an education, even sending her through Wellesley.

And now Henrietta was twenty-two, proficient in all accomplishments but conversant with no calling that would bring in money. She laid a thousand plans for becoming a wage-earner, but her aunt "put her foot down" on every one of them. Etta fretted—but what could she do? She would not forsake Selina, even if she could get employment somewhere else—which was extremely doubtful.

"I wonder if I shall ever be married," thought Etta.

That summer there returned to his boyhood home Frank P. Ellsworth, a millionaire from New York. Frank P. had not been seen in Sandport for forty years until he had suddenly appeared there, bought the old Bijah Crandal place, and began the erection of a great stone mansion. He had been twenty-five when he had gone away and, by consequence, was sixty-five now.

There were plenty of people who remembered him as the tall, thin, scraggy young man, full of ambition and a hard worker, whose parents were among the town's poor and shiftless. But not one of them would have recognized in the large, portly, prosperous-looking, autocratic and reserved plutocrat, the Frank Ellsworth of long ago.

Every man and woman in the place, it seemed, who was old enough to make out a colorful case, greeted Frank P. like a long lost brother and intimated that they had been his earliest friend and benefactor. But the gentleman from New York was not an easy person to "get next to."

"I wonder if he will go and see Miss Selina?" the older people whispered to each other. For between Frank Ellsworth, the poor, struggling and low-born youth, and Selina Briggs, the pretty daughter of one of the proudest of the "old families," there had been, it was rumored at the time, a little love affair—which, of course, came to nothing on account of the vast difference in the social status of the lovers. Some said that was why Frank had suddenly left Sandport.

Be that as it may, the golden, returned wanderer did not call upon Miss Selina and Miss Selina appeared to be only languidly interested in his return. By the following summer the new house was completed and was occupied by the millionaire and his family. The only son, Egbert, was only twenty-five, just the age his father had been at the time of his flitting from Sandport. By the time fall was beginning to draw to its end and the summer folks were departing, Egbert and Etta were fully aware that they loved each other—and so was the rest of the community.

It was the second Sunday after he had taken possession of his new house that Frank Ellsworth, coming out of church with his wife and son, ran plump into Miss Selina coming out with Etta, and for the first time for forty years lifted his hat and spoke to his boyhood "name." Introductions naturally followed—and that's how Egbert and Etta became first acquainted. As for Selina and Frank after that when they met they spoke of course—generally about the weather—but that is all they saw of each other. Not so Egbert and Etta—they were together with an increasing frequency from their first meeting on.

Miss Selina watched the growing intimacy between her niece and young Ellsworth approvingly. Frank watched it disapprovingly. Mrs. Ellsworth, being a model wife—old style model—was prepared to think just as her husband thought. Egbert saw matters drawing to a crisis, felt the coming storm and talked it over with Etta, who talked it over with her aunt who said: "If you two want to be married why don't you do so? You are both old enough to know your own minds if you are ever going to. But what shall I do when you are gone?" "Oh, we shan't go away, auntie," replied Etta. "Egbert likes Sandport. He wants to fix up the old house and live here."

"All right," said Miss Selina. Egbert told his father in a most off-hand manner what had been decided upon. The old man made his fortune by his quick decisions. He looked at Egbert, saw that square-set jaw, and knew that in this he could not move him. "Very well," said he. "Family not good enough for me once," and then, grimly, "it will be a bit of revenge for me, anyhow." For a full hour after Egbert had left him Frank sat there musing.

Possibly Selina mused too. But if they mused of what might have been neither Frank nor Selina ever spoke. What was lurking in their minds as they watched the happiness of Egbert and Etta no one ever knew.

SUMMER DESSERTS

THE three most popular home desserts in this country during the summer are undoubtedly these: Short-cake, pie and ice cream, and almost all of the summer fruits may be used in one or more of these types of dessert. Strawberry ice cream, strawberry shortcake and a pie or tart made by baking a single pastry shell, filling it with fresh strawberries just before serving, and spreading with whipped cream.

Peach ice cream, peach shortcake and peach pie made by using sliced peaches in the same way, which is generally preferred to the cooked peach pie. Red raspberries make delicious ice cream though some persons prefer the flavor in water ice or sherbet. The best sort of red raspberry shortcake is doubtless one made from biscuit dough, rather than cake and whipped cream. Red raspberries may be used for the sort of one shell pie described or may be used with an equal quantity of currants to make a cooked berry pie that is uncommonly good.

Oddly enough apples have never lent themselves to ice cream making but they make amends in their usefulness in pies. Apple sauce shortcake deserves greater popularity than it has. It is made from a layer of light biscuit dough freshly baked in a cake pan. It is split in two in the middle, spread lightly with butter and filled with freshly made apple sauce.

Shakespeare First

Not long ago six Princeton professors were asked what ten works they would take with them if they had to spend the rest of their days on a desert island, and all included Shakespeare. If men caused to be put into their coffins what they most wished to take with them into their post-terrestrial exile (as did the Chaldeans, Egyptians and others in ancient times), many of them would have pockets made in their shrouds for a single-volume edition of Shakespeare.

When College Men Had Little Use for Barbers

At most colleges today the haircut is deemed highly necessary, and at some institutions freshmen are warned not to resemble the traditional long-haired musician. This was not always the case, as was judged from a circular letter sent out in 1730 to parents of Princeton undergraduates by the president of the university at that time, Samuel Stanhope Smith.

"Horses and barbers are utterly unnecessary to students during the sessions of college," says President Smith, "and there are more than two-thirds of the students who never use them, except now and then a barber on a public occasion." In the letter it was pointed out that $171.21½ would cover the required expenses for one year, and that spending money should be strictly limited. President Smith estimated that $2 a month for "private and unexamined" expense was a generous allowance, but said that this amount was exceeded by "many young men aiming too much at ostentation in their appearance" and that there were apt to incur "heavy and unnecessary debts for clothing, barbers and horses."

Plane Came Home With Dead Hands on "Stick"

One of the most curious of queer happenings in the air occurred in the World War. One day, about noon, a British 2C was sighted gliding down toward its airport. But instead of circling to land it kept steadily on and passed over the field. Instant suspicion crept into every man's mind that the Germans were landing a spy in a captured machine. A truck was manned and a half dozen stalwarts, armed with revolvers, made off in the direction in which the airplane disappeared. In a few minutes the machine was discovered, standing still in a large field. Its "prop" turning over slowly. From ample cover some one called out. There was no answer, though two men could be seen sitting in the cockpit.

Finally, some litrepid soul stealthily approached, only to find that both airmen were dead. The machine had actually flown down home and landed there safely, without any damage to its structure.—Literary Digest.

Beautiful New Zealand

Not content with rivaling Switzerland, New Zealand has wonderful fjords as beautiful and impressive as those of Norway, says a traveler. The mountains come down to the edge of the sea and end abruptly in precipices a couple of thousand feet deep, which continue under the sea for another two thousand feet, so the biggest liners can steam there in perfect safety.

Wives, Daughters Of the Candidates Lead the Rooters

Chicago Stadium, July 1 (AP).—The womenfolk of six contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination have taken an active part in the official program. Feminine participation was more spectacular than ever before in a political contest.

Candidates' kin last night contributed political as well as human interest. Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor declared a "personal" second choice of Darkhorse Newton Baker even as she watched a demonstration for her own husband.

Mrs. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray apparently stayed away. But the Smiths, the Roosevelts, a Byrd, a Reed and a White were watching all night long in Chicago stadium.

It was the approach of a climax for women. Feminine delegates, seconders and enthusiasts—taking possession of the platform, joining and leading in the wild, parading, dancing, howling demonstrations.

The preliminary jockeying in which they couldn't lead was done, and the women on the floor seemed to realize this was their day. They made the most of it.

In a box directly across from the speakers, Anna Roosevelt Dall followed her father's progress with so much rooting she actually lost her voice. With this blonde, vivacious leading contestant's daughter sat her sister-in-law, Mrs. James Roosevelt. They glowed with confidence.

"Of course he'll get it," Anna called out. "What ballot it'll be I don't know, but I hope it's soon."

Later, when an Iowa Roosevelt-placed delegate rose and seconded Alfred E. Smith, however, she gazed over the carpet of human heads with a very sober visage.

"What a peculiar speech!" she exclaimed, putting down and forgetting her lemonade.

The moment was one of triumph in a box on the same side of the stadium—from which the Smiths looked on. Emily Smith Warner exulted: "There! And there'll be more of such, I believe, tonight."

Her mother looked on in evident suspense. Still the modest spouse, Mrs. Smith chatted with many a visiting supporter, and shouted with the rest of the Smithites; but in the intervals kept her glance on the platform.

Between the mother and daughter sat Mrs. Daniel Mooney, wife of their man's long time friend. They were joined later by Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson of New York, reiterating "He's going over, way over."

Between Roosevelt and Smith groups the Traylor watched—Mrs. Traylor, a patrician dark beauty, perfectly garbed in brown, her subdue daughter, blonde and 17, and Melvin Traylor, Jr.

"It is," Mrs. Traylor said, "a great honor for Mr. Traylor to be mentioned."

"They promised me they'd omit this," she gestured to the strutting Traylorites, "but at that it's nice to know we have so many friends."

It was then Mrs. Traylor, asked if she had a second choice, swiftly responded. "Personally I'd like very much to see Baker nominated."

At the rim of the noise making throng sat Mrs. James A. Reed of Missouri, white haired, gracious and calm. She received a call from Genevieve Clark Thomson, who saw her own father, Champ Clark, lose the nomination under the two-thirds rule in 1912.

Mrs. W. H. ("Alfalfa Bill") Murray was there. She stayed out of the fray, though she had taken part in previous sessions, making picturesque comment.

High above and opposite the Smiths another young blonde rooter sat in comparative but dramatic obscurity. Mary, official hostess and daughter of Governor White of Ohio, was all alone. In a pink and black dotted silk dress, she smiles. "I've no idea whether he will win," she said. "but I'm hoping he'll get it!" And she looked wistful.

Mrs. Charles J. Faulkner, cousin-in-law of former Governor Harry Byrd of Virginia, likewise listened intently to his nominating speech. They couldn't run the show—but they were doing their best.

VITAMIN B IN BRAN, RESEARCH REVEALS

Also Has "Bulk" to Further Assist Elimination, and Iron for Blood

One of the functions of Vitamin B is to help tone the intestinal tract, and promote elimination. Now, laboratory experiments show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains this valuable vitamin.

In addition, ALL-BRAN brings a plentiful supply of "bulk"—which provides the "ballast" needed to exercise the intestines.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Inside the body, it is different from the way you see it in the package. It absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, milder, more palatable.

Another healthful element brought by ALL-BRAN is iron. Tests show this cereal has twice as much usable iron as the same weight of beef liver.

Check common constipation—with its frequent headaches, loss of appetite and energy—by eating this delicious cereal. How much pleasanter than taking pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

SETANGYA, SATANTA AND BIG TREE

The excitement of a raid against the whites must have held considerable fascination for the Kiowa. There were the gathering of a war-party, the ceremonies, the preparations, the stealing out, every sense alert; the first glimpse of the white men; and the mad gallop down upon them, feathers flying, yelling, shooting. Then there was the battle itself, in which the startled white men sometimes were victors, but often not, and the return to camp with the spoils, where the women admired the warriors or wept for the slain.

The danger of such a raid only added to its excitement. It was the great outlet of the Kiowa people, and when the tribe was compelled by Custer to come in and settle on the reservation, even the presence of Fort Sill in their midst could not stop them from raiding.

Setangya (Sitting Bear) was the leader of the principal Kiowa war society. Satanta (White Bear) was second in rank, and Adoette (Big Tree) was not lacking in importance. Setangya and Satanta were signers of the Medicine Lodge treaty of 1867, by which the Kiowa agreed to go on the reservation. There seems to have been a mental reservation, however, with regard to raids, for the three chiefs were leaders in these forays.

Setangya's son, while engaged in raiding in Texas, was killed by the whites. The aged chief—he was sixty years old at the time—visited the scene, and managed to collect his son's bones. These he tied into a bundle and took them back with him to Oklahoma. A special horse was assigned the task of carrying this bundle wherever the old chief might go, and from this time until his death, the bones of the son accompanied the father.

In May, 1871, a year after Setangya's son was killed, the three chiefs assembled a large war party and prepared for an elaborate raid. The warriors rode into Texas, attacked a wagon-train and killed seven men. Forty-one mules were added to their herd, and the success of this exploit was the subject for much boasting, after the Indian fashion.

The agent at Fort Sill heard the news direct from Setangya, who could not keep from telling the story of the fortunate raid to all who would listen. Unfortunately for the three chiefs, the agent did not view this "battle" with the Indians' eyes, and caused the leaders to be arrested. They were to be taken to Texas and tried there for the murder of the seven men.

Setangya, however, bitter old Indian as he was, felt that he knew a better way of dying than being hung by the white men, as he thought would be his fate if he submitted to arrest. His son died fighting, and he determined to do likewise.

Singing his death-song, the old Kiowa wrenched the fetters from his wrists, drew a knife which he had hidden in his clothing, and sprang upon the guard. A volley of shots stopped him, fired by the surrounding soldiers. And so died Setangya, as he wished to die, fighting.

Satanta and Big Tree were brought to trial, and their sentence was life imprisonment in the Texas penitentiary. This sentence was not served, however, for only two years later they were given their freedom on condition that the Kiowa would become peaceful and behave well. But the Kiowa were still a raiding people. Peace imposed such a burden upon them that in 1874 they arose and caused considerable trouble.

Satanta was arrested again. The popular chief, princely and dignified, as he has been described, was taken back to the Texas penitentiary.

Perhaps the memory of Setangya's death came to him, or perhaps he felt that he was disgraced by the outbreak of his people after his release. At any rate, he jumped from an upper story, and was killed.

Big Tree, the last of the chiefs who were on the fatal raid, was held at Fort Sill. He was younger, and therefore less firmly an Indian in his ideas, than the other two. He became friendly, accepted Christianity, and lived on his allotment of land in peace.

Shortest Course on Ocean

The shortest distance between two points on the same parallel of latitude (except on the equator) is not this distance on the parallel of latitude but rather the distance on a "great circle" around the earth, passing through the two places. This can be understood more readily by reference to a globe or ball. Books dealing with navigation point out that a great circle course is shorter than the "rhumb line" or simple Mercator track. The assertion that it would be shorter to take a course that goes north of the parallel of latitude is correct.

Oath of Office

The custom of an official's taking an oath of office to administer the laws did not originate with the Christian religion. From the earliest records of the Jews such oaths were required.

Mankind and War

In all the history of man, dating back 3,421 years, there have been only 266 years of peace against 3,155 years of war, while 8,000 peace treaties have been concluded in that time, according to the Society of International Law in London.

Legend of St. Catherine

The firework known as a "Catherine wheel" is said to commemorate the martyrdom of Catherine, a Fourth century Christian saint. According to legend, Maximianus, after attempting to convert him. She was condemned to torture on a wheel, but this was miraculously destroyed, and she was beheaded. In addition to the wheel-like firework, St. Catherine's wheel is also commemorated by the Catherine window, which is circular in form with radiating divisions in various colors, and the Catherine wheel somewhat.

Picturesque "Team"

The Russian troika was a team of three horses abreast, which drew the vehicle. Emma Cochran Ponsidine describes it in "Russia, My Home." She says that the middle horse is always the heaviest in build and a fast trotter, never allowed to break into a gallop. He is harnessed in shafts, the ends of which are kept up by a high yoke rising above the animal's head and from which a bell is hung. The side horses are of lighter build and are taught to gallop, each curving his head outward and back.

Homes for the Soul

To get peace, if you do want it, make for yourselves nests of pleasant thoughts. None of us yet know, for none of us have been taught in early youth what fairy palaces we may build of beautiful thoughts—proof against all adversity—bright fancies, satisfied memories, faithful sayings, treasure houses of peace and restful thoughts which cannot disturb, nor pain, make gloomy, nor poverty take away from us—houses built without hands for our souls to live in.—John Ruskin.

Matters Before
The Surrogate

Will of Fred P. Luther, who died in Kingston April 21, admitted to probate upon petition of the National Ulster County Bank and Trust Co., executor. It disposes of real estate, value given as unknown, and personal property valued at not to exceed $10,000. William H. Grogan is attorney for the executor. Testator's daughter, Helen E. Luther, receives the homestead at 50 Downs street and an interest in the furniture and equipment. The remainder of the estate is placed in trust, income to be paid one-third to the widow, Myrtle B. Luther, and two-thirds to the daughter, Helen E. Luther. On the death of these beneficiaries any residue goes, share and share alike, to St. John's Episcopal Church, Kingston Hospital, Ulster County Committee for Prevention of Tuberculosis and the Kingston Home for the Aged.

Will of Cyrus Cudney, who died in Kingston March 6, admitted to probate upon petition of George E. Phillips, executor, disposes of real property valued at not to exceed $4,000 and personal of not more than $3,500. E. E. Ougheltree is the attorney. To the son, Raymond D. Cudney, Ada F. Cudney, is left the farm in the town of Olive, $1,000 each, cattle and equipment. Cows, calves, household furniture, etc., goes to the daughter, To Cyrus Dinkman, a grandson, is bequeathed a wood lot in the town of Olive. All the rest of the estate is divided among Daisy M. Dinkman, Grace A. Phillips of Kingston, Willabelle Sorenson and Verna McCann of California, and Jency Cudney of Brooklyn.

Cora McDowell, the widow, is executrix under the will of James McDowell, who died in the town of Warrington May 30. The estate consists of real property valued at not to exceed $2,500 and personal of not over $3,200. H. Westlake Coons is the attorney. The entire estate is left to the wife for life, any remainder going to the three children: Flord J. McDowell, Latham's Corners, N. Y., Nona May McDowell and Alice McDowell Steiner of Ellenville.

Anna Lauer and Clara S. Ripper of Ellenville, daughters, are executrices under the will of Sarah Lapp, who died in Ellenville June 3. The will disposes of an estate valued at not to exceed $3,000 real nor more than $2,500 personal. Raymond G. Cox is the attorney for the estate and drew the will for Mrs. Lapp in October, 1929. When the will was presented for probate there was attached to the original typewritten document a piece of paper written in

AN INTERRUPTED BATH

"IT IS queer. It is very queer. It is the queerest thing I've ever known," muttered Paddy the Beaver to himself. "What under the sun are they covering themselves with mud for? That is what beats me. Mud is all right to build houses and dams with but why anyone should want to plaster it all over themselves is more than I can understand. My, but each of them is a sight!"

Of course you know who Paddy meant. He meant Farmer Brown's Boy, half hidden on the farther side of the pond, his face and neck covered with mud, and Buster Bear rolling in mud not very far from where Paddy was hiding with the Quack family in the rushes, only his head out of water. It was more than Paddy could understand, because Paddy never had been stung by Busy Bee, and so never had had a chance to find out that mud is of use in more ways than plastering houses and dams. He didn't know what Farmer Brown's Boy and Buster Bear knew, that it would take the smart out of stings. So he couldn't guess why they had covered themselves with mud, and he just itched to ask.

But he didn't do anything of the kind. He didn't even let them know that he knew they were there. He had a feeling that more interesting things might happen, and so he kept perfectly still right where he was. You see, Paddy had more than a suspicion that Buster Bear didn't know that Farmer Brown's Boy was anywhere about.

Then He Waded Out Until the Water Became So Deep That He Was Forced to Swim.

"Something is bound to happen when he finds it out," chuckled Paddy. You see, he and Buster Bear are old acquaintances, and he knows just how Buster feels toward all mankind. So he remained right where he was so as not to miss anything.

After Buster Bear had rolled and long hard and in addition there were numerous interruptions or chances to be well done with lead pencil. Following a hearing, Surrogate Kaufman admitted to probate the will as originally drawn, excepting the changes and the contents of the paper which had been passed on the will. In addition to bequests of silverware and furniture to the three daughters, Anna Lauer, Clara S. Ripper and Flora Reuman, there are the following legacies as listed for tax appraisal: Anna Lauer, $200; Clara S. Ripper and Flora Reuman, $100 each; to sons and granddaughters, Robert H. Reuman, $100 each; Vincent H. Reuman, $100 each; Dorothy Reuman, $100 each; Clara Lapp, $100 each; to Clara K. Lapp, daughter-in-law, $50 and to Milton J. Lapp, son, $2,500.

Waterpout Feared as

Dread Living Monster

The waterpout, though it still appeals strongly to the imagination of mankind, and though popular fallacies about it are still rife, is hardly a mystery to a man of science or to the educated seaman; but go back a few centuries and you find it the subject of fantastic beliefs and speculations. Most authorities saw in it a living monster of some sort; religious rites and various noise-making processes were the customary methods of driving it away.

The gross superstitions and the gross ignorances have been swept from the sea; but that is not to say that mankind approaches finality of knowledge with respect to the ways of nature, either by sea or land. Science is forever "climbing up the climbing wave" and perhaps will continue to do so to the end of time.—New York Times.

Precious Meter-Stick

In the vault of the bureau of standards in Washington there has reposed for 15 years, a bar of metal which has been brought out into the light of day only three times during that period. It is a bar of platinum and iridium, the same composition which enters into the manufacture of fashionable jewelry. The bar is exactly one meter in length, a duplicate of the standard meter enshrined at Paris which is the international standard of the civilized world. There are four such standard meters at Washington, all carefully guarded, and the purpose of the occasional excursion into daylight of the one is to check up on the others which are subjected to the wear and tear of occasional use. The five-year checkup is made with microscope accuracy, allowances being made for the possible effects of temperature and other variations.

First President's Plan

Carried Out by Others

In his will George Washington left 80 shares of stock in the Potomac (Canal) company for the endowment of a university, to be established in the District of Columbia, to which the youth of fortune and talent from all parts thereof might be sent for the completion of their education in all the branches of polite literature—in arts and science, in acquiring knowledge in the principles of politics and good government. In furtherance of that hope and project of the first President of the United States, the Columbian college, now named the George Washington university, was established. The stock which General Washington willed toward such an institution became valueless owing to the failure of the canal project, and it was necessary for "the college," established in the District of Columbia, to obtain funds from other sources.—Washington Star.

Simple Rules for the Preservation of Sight

According to the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, one-half of all blindness is preventable. Science has now discovered all its major causes. It remains for such public-spirited organizations as the national society to educate the public in prevention. To minimize the hazards to sight follow these simple rules:

Read with a clear, good light falling from above over your left shoulder. Hold your book or paper about 14 inches from your eyes.

Always read with your head up. Keep book or paper clean; a soiled page is hard to read.

Avoid books printed indistinctly, in small type or on glossy paper.

Rest your eyes frequently.

If your eyes ache, or if you have trouble in seeing things distinctly, have your eyes examined.—New York World-Telegram.

Work of Roman Empire

The Roman empire brought within one great political unity all the peoples and civilization of the Mediterranean basin. The elements from the older Orient, from the Greeks and from the Hebrews by way of Christianity, were all given a chance to spread and mingle under Roman government and Roman law. The ideal of one rule for the civilized world survived in the medieval empire and the Roman Catholic church. Many of the principles and even the details of Roman law reappear in the law of all the nations today. The combined oriental, Greek, Christian, and Roman civilization was impressed on formerly barbarian groups in western Europe, and its essentials survived into the Middle ages to become part of the foundation of our modern life.

Umbrella Idea Ancient

If you think the umbrella is a comparatively recent invention to shelter its owner from the rain, you are quite wrong. At a gathering of umbrella makers of Paris, copies of umbrellas owned by famous men and women, even in ancient times, were shown. A beautiful white one, edged with a border of pink, reminiscent of beaches in summer, belonged to Salazar II of Assyria, while another was a copy of one used by Charlemagne. The parasol, however, did not come into use until the sixteenth century.—Exchange.

Deaf Mutes Have Church

"The Church of the Silent Service" is the name given to a church at Newcastle, England, which has a congregation composed entirely of deaf mutes. The building formerly was used as a stable. Only two small windows let in the dim light. No organ is ever played, no hymn is ever sung and no word is ever uttered. But the worshippers, by lip reading, the deaf-and-dumb alphabet and signs, are as devout as any who have the good fortune to possess all their faculties. Often more than 100 of these afflicted people take part in the services.

Greenland in Motion?

It has been stated that Greenland is floating southward at the rate of 100 miles per year. Such a movement of a great land mass would of course be a serious matter and there is no authority for the statement. A Danish scientist, Doctor Jansen, a few years ago made a claim, as the result of his observations, that the Greenland continent is moving westward at the rate of 20 yards a year. We cannot say if this claim has been accepted by other scientists.—Detroit News.

Magdeburg Hemispheres

In 1654 Otto von Guericke of Magdeburg performed an experiment before the imperial diet at Ratisbon, in which he took two hollow hemispheres of copper or brass, rubbed the edges with grease, fitted them closely together, exhausted the air in the globe thus formed through a stopcock in one of the hemispheres, and showed that the hemispheres were held together with tremendous force. With hemispheres a foot in diameter this force is approximately one ton.

Live This Life Well

Heaven holds out little hope to those persons who are so busy preparing for it that they have little time for their fellows. The best way to get ready for immortality is to love this life, and to live it as bravely, as helpfully, and as cheerfully as we can.—Grit.

Ancient Use of Concrete

The domed roof of the Pantheon, built at Rome by the Emperor Hadrian, is a single concrete cast, over 100 feet across. The Romans of 1,800 years ago employed concrete on a scale such as modern builders have only recently learned to imitate.

The Cliff House at Lake Wales, Fla., was opened Thursday for the season.

Meadowlark Mismated

Although his spirit is brave and his notes are cheery, the meadowlark is not a lark at all, despite its name. He is a cousin of blackbirds and orioles, but he is much more demure than they. Where blackbirds are bold, the meadowlark is a shy bird. Even his apparel of mottled brown and yellow, with a crescent of black, so blends with the grass and scrub that he is seldom noticed. Where blackbirds are conspicuous and cheerful, meadowlarks are shy and remote.

Sight Changes On Second Ballot

Chicago Stadium, July 1 (AP).—The growing confusion as all night long of the Democratic convention has now changed to a morning without making a nomination.

The leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt, had 66%, on the first ballot and 77% on the second. A total of 77% are needed to nominate.

His nearest competitors were Alton B. Parker, 13%, and John N. Garner, 11%. The second ballot Smith had 34% and Garner 30%.

Roosevelt's gains on the second ballot came from Indiana, where he had 2, one from Melvin Traylor, and from Harry P. Byrd, Missouri, all at the expense of James A. H. Smith, New York one, from Smith, North Dakota one, from William H. Murray, Ohio 1/2, from George White, Alaska one, from Traylor.

The Roosevelt managers, who had been insistent on holding the convention until the voting stage was reached, sought after the second ballot to adjourn until 4 p. m.

Some of the opposition objected, saying they had been kept here all night, and were now prepared to stay all day.

A roll call on the adjournment was ordered, but the motion was withdrawn by Arthur Mullen and at 3:08 a. m. Chairman Walsh ordered the roll called for a third ballot on the nomination.

The official result of the second ballot on the presidential nomination was:

Roosevelt 677%, Smith 194%, White 23%, Byrd 24, Garner 19%, White 50%, Rogers 22, Baker 8, Traylor 40%, Reed 18.

"Big Shot" Suttiff of Ulster Gun Club

By virtue of increasing his average nearly 20 per cent Roy M. Suttiff becomes the first Life Member of the Ulster County Gun Club and is the first "Big Shot" of the club.

His average on 25 targets in the team match held by the club last winter was 14.2.

Shooting the next 10 strings his average was 19.2, a gain of 4.9, or 19.5 per cent. This "Big Shot" title gives him the same precedence over the other club members as the title of Vice President Curtis has over the other official leaders in Washington.

All club members at all times must show him every courtesy and all the reverence the old time ship captains required of their common sailors. Even to the extent of never passing on the windward side of him.

He must always be permitted to be the first shooter to face the traps, and no members must remain seated in the club house while he is standing.

Members will also always tip their hats to "Big Shot" when meeting him on the street.

Several new shooters are attending the Thursday evening shoots of the club.

Roosevelt Feels Sure He Will Win

Executive Mansion, Albany, N. Y., July 1 (AP).—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, after gaining slightly more than 16 votes in three ballots, was confident he would win the presidential nomination as the Democratic National Convention adjourned its all-night session today.

Asked if he was still confident that he would win the nomination, the Governor replied emphatically: "I am."

He added: "The boys in Chicago are pleased and confident."

SEEKING ORIGIN OF WEST INDIES

Explorers Will Undertake to Solve Mystery.

Washington—Light on the origin of the West Indies is being sought by the Smithsonian Institution in the dark caves of Porto Rico, where George S. Miller, Jr., director of mammalogy, is now seeking clues to extinct animal life.

Two theories as to the origin of these islands exist. One is that they once were part of a continuous land mass connected with the North American continent, which was submerged in the ocean like the fabulous "Lost Atlantis" with only its mountains remaining above the water. The other is that they rose from the sea and were never connected with the continent.

The animals of this region afford major puzzles to biologists. The peculiar mammal life, some of whose vanished forms are represented by bones buried in cavern floors, Smithsonian scientists hope may illuminate the most theories of origin. If a land connection ever existed, it is held, the continental mammals would have wandered freely into the West Indian area. However, none of the larger families, such as the bison or the bears, are represented among the living forms or fossils.

Those who hold to the continental theory explain this by arguing that these larger forms were creatures of the lowlands which perished when the land was inundated. They believe that only smaller creatures of the high mountains, whose tops form the present West Indies, would have survived. They ask, if these islands were of oceanic origin, where did their animal life originate?

Unfortunately the present mammal life of the islands, according to the Smithsonian experts, may be by no means representative of what it once was. At the time of Columbus' first voyage there was a large human population, part of whose sustenance was obtained by hunting. Some of the most interesting creatures had disappeared long before science became interested in them. It is planned to reconstruct this extinct life, in so far as possible, from the cave deposits in order to establish any possible relationships.

The biology and archeology of the West Indies are considered among the major fields of Smithsonian institution research. This is Miller's third expedition to the West Indies on this quest.

Experts Discover Stage Thunder Is Old Stuff

Rome—The artificial production of thunder and lightning offstage is not modern dramatic invention by any means. It appears from recent excavations at Butrinto (the ancient Buthrotum) in southern Albania.

The discovery of a complete theater, with several back stage rooms presumably used for the synthetic production of roaring thunder and flashing lightning to accompany Jove's appearance, has been reported by an Italian archeological mission headed by Dr. Luigi Ugolini, which has been digging during the past fall and winter.

The theater was built partly by the Greeks in the fourth century before Christ, and partly by the Romans at the end of the republican era. The playhouse, especially the stage, was found in a good state of preservation. An interesting detail was constituted by a small moat surrounding the stage. It is believed that the curtain was probably lowered into this moat at the commencement of the performance, a device which is still preferred by some theaters today to the usual rising curtain.

Old-Time Inns Turn Stables Into Garages

London—Since the motorized horse power of modern life has so greatly replaced the old four-footed variety, English inns, no matter how ancient, have had to keep up the same pace.

The inns, in fact, now within reach of all the large cities by automobile or public bus, have sprung to new life. Superficially, they are the same as in stage-coach days: huge timbered buildings with interiors lofty, raftered and cool; but their stables today are garages, and living conveniences and cooking have changed to the style of the modern hotels.

One company now controls no less than 160 of these inns.

Old Altar Stone in Crypt
St. Louis—An altar stone, used as early as 1675 in France, is in the crypt of St. Francis Xavier's church here. The stone, brought to St. Louis by Father Marquette when he was tracing the course of the Mississippi river, is believed to be the oldest in America.

SEEKING ORIGIN OF WEST INDIES

Explorers Will Undertake to Solve Mystery.

Washington—Light on the origin of the West Indies is being sought by the Smithsonian Institution in the dark caves of Porto Rico, where George S. Miller, Jr., director of mammalogy, is now seeking clues to extinct animal life.

Two theories as to the origin of these islands exist. One is that they once were part of a continuous land mass connected with the North American continent, which was submerged in the ocean like the fabulous "Lost Atlantis" with only its mountains remaining above the water. The other is that they rose from the sea and were never connected with the continent.

The animals of this region afford major puzzles to biologists. The peculiar mammal life, some of whose vanished forms are represented by bones buried in cavern floors, Smithsonian scientists hope may illuminate the most theories of origin. If a land connection ever existed, it is held, the continental mammals would have wandered freely into the West Indian area. However, none of the larger families, such as the bison or the bears, are represented among the living forms or fossils.

Those who hold to the continental theory explain this by arguing that these larger forms were creatures of the lowlands which perished when the land was inundated. They believe that only smaller creatures of the high mountains, whose tops form the present West Indies, would have survived. They ask, if these islands were of oceanic origin, where did their animal life originate?

Unfortunately the present mammal life of the islands, according to the Smithsonian experts, may be by no means representative of what it once was. At the time of Columbus' first voyage there was a large human population, part of whose sustenance was obtained by hunting. Some of the most interesting creatures had disappeared long before science became interested in them. It is planned to reconstruct this extinct life, in so far as possible, from the cave deposits in order to establish any possible relationships.

The biology and archeology of the West Indies are considered among the major fields of Smithsonian institution research. This is Miller's third expedition to the West Indies on this quest.

Forsts Score Victory Over West Shore Team Behind Van Buren, 6-1

Dewey Van Buren, a successful coach, took his turn on the mound for the Butchers on Friday night. The West Shore team, a double by Van Buren, won his game by a score of 6 to 1. The win gave the Butchers a stronger hold on first place in the City League and put the Railroaders down to a second place position for third place.

Knight, who not only robbed Van Buren of a shutout but it also prevented him from scoring a shutout. With the exception of the fourth inning he didn't allow a man to get on the bases.

Pick Williams, ex-Colonial and speed ball artist, opposed Van Buren. He had two bad innings, the third and seventh, allowing three runs in each. Either inning was enough to beat him. His speed ball was not as fast as in former years and he was hit hard in spots.

Jackie Dawkins shared the heroic honors with Van Buren. He scored twice and closed a home run with two runners aboard in the last inning to give the Butchers a wide margin.

For two innings the teams battled on even terms, but in the third the Butchers broke through the Railroaders' defense and scored enough runs to win the game. Van Buren surprised the Railroaders by bunting and reached second when Spevack threw wild to first base on the play.

Davitt went to first on a fielder's choice and both runners were safe on the play. Van Buren advanced to third on a passed ball and registered when Leaki missed Hoffman's throw to third base trying to catch Van Buren napping. Merritt bunted safely and Davitt took third to score a moment later on a double steal. Lay tossed Merritt out at the plate when he tried to score on Dawkins' single. C. Tiano singled and Dawkins reached third. Johnson sent him home with a sacrifice hit.

The Railroaders' lone run came as a result of Van Buren's only walk. R. Williams received the walk and was forced at second base by Hoffman, who took second on Van Buren's wild toss to Tiano. The toss cost Van Buren a shutout as Knight then poked his double and Hoffman denied the rubber for the Railroaders' lone tally.

Dawkins' home run accounted for the Butchers' last three runs. Davitt and Merritt were on the sacks at the time as the result of a single and an error.

SIDELINERS

"Bud" Tierney made a real spectacular catch and one of the best of the season when he appeared with his gloved hand Morgan's fly as it was about to land on top of the cars in Smith avenue in the fourth inning. The catch saved Van Buren a pile of trouble as Knight had hit his double previously.

Dawkins' home run was a dandy. The ball went far over Lay's head in right field. Lay tried hard to get it, but could not catch up with it.

The score:
Tommy Davitt, playing second base for the Butchers, looked more like the Tommy of last season in this game. He came out of his batting slump and played wonderful ball on the defense.

Golf's Greatest

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

If there had been anything lyrical about the Sharkey-Schmeling fight, we might have credited the sailors victory to poetic justice.

But this was no saga of the ring. Just a dull affair between two of this generation's fistie business men, a rather attractive, black-haired young German, who did the best he could to make it a brisk fight, and a stolid, heavy-jointed ex-American sailor who relied entirely on counter punches to gain the 2-to-1 decision of New York officials.

In a misguided moment two years ago Sharkey came into the ring for his first of two dismal fights with Schmeling with the flag draped over his (Sharkey's) shoulders. He failed to arouse any patriotic outburst, then, and his award of the title at the new Madison Square Garden bowl did not stir the pulses, even of those who like to have America supreme in all sporting fields, at any cost.

Sportsmanship, at its very least, would have dictated Schmeling not so flimsy a margin as two of the three officials saw and which only a handful of the ringside experts agreed to.

German sportsmen have much stronger grounds for being suspicious of the motives of our boxing officials now than the British did when they protested the decision that gave Sharkey a knockout victory over Phil Scott in 1930.

Just a Hack Job
Sharkey has fought his good and bad fights. He did neither against Schmeling. His was a plodding, mediocre performance that had its effective points, but which also was thoroughly lacking in the spirit, resourcefulness and ability to be expected from a fighter challenging for the world championship.

Imagine, for example, what a Dempsey of 1919 or 1923, or a Tunney of 1926-27 would have done to a boxer giving ground so consistently and showing so much cautiousness as Sharkey!

The new champion's supporters, of course, consider he waged exactly the type of bout calculated to beat the aggressive, spirited German, who unquestionably improved as the bout went along. Yet it is admitted even by the sailor's friends that he was tiring toward the finish, with one eye closed, and that he would have been a punching bag for Schmeling in a 20-round fight.

Sheep Or Goat?
Jack Sharkey has provided more ring arguments than any other champion, with the possible exception of Dempsey.

The difference is that doubt still exists as to just how good, or bad, Sharkey is, whereas no question has ever existed about the old mauler's intentions, once he was inside the ring.

Sharkey has always had the main qualifications, speed, boxing ability, ruggedness and punch. Out of the ring he's considered a friendly, likable fellow, devoted to his family and thrifty. Inside the ropes he may produce any one of three baffling personalities and win, lose or draw, regardless of the opposition and the stakes.

Whether we like it or not, however, Sharkey is now the champion. Too much having been said about the matter already, we will let it rest there for the time being and roam more attractive fields of sporting activity.

Not Really Arabs

In Palestine in the newspaper reports and official communiques the Mohammedan population is almost invariably described as Arabs, whereas the inhabitants of the villages and towns have for the most part very little or no Arab blood, but are the original Philistines, Jebusites and Canaanites who occupied that country previous to the Jewish invasion.

This Game of Golf

By O. R. KELLEN

I wonder if Miss Enid Wilson, British lady golf champion for the second time in two years, will come over here again and take a whack at our ladies' championship, September 26 through October 1, at the Salem Country Club, Peabody, Mass.

Miss Wilson came over last season, after winning the British championship, and Helen Hicks defeated her and Glenna Collett Vare in successive rounds, in winning her own first major title.

British girls don't do so well over here, and our girls don't do so well over there, but it should be said that a lot more of our girls have been making the effort. We had a very good delegation, this year, good enough to win the international team match handily. But in the tournament at Saunton—well, Mrs. Pressler-Cheney was the last American, and she was out in the semi-final round, to Miss Wilson.

Here's The Answer
Miss Wilson in an article published not long ago in an Edinburgh magazine gives her ideas quite frankly concerning American girls' golf, which, as Dr. Alastair Mackenzie recently pointed out, appears as much below British women's golf as American men's golf is better than British men's.

Miss Wilson advances some ideas which appear to me to be original. "First of all," she says, "we must realize that women's golf is still in comparative infancy in the U. S. A. This is due to the shortness of the golfing season and the vast distances which have to be covered by players who specialize in competitive golf."

"Eliminating California and Florida," Miss Wilson proceeds, "their season lasts from the beginning of May to the end of September. They never play more than 18 holes a day, which is not surprising when we remember that the thermometer generally registers around the 100 degree mark. The difference in the texture of the turf, size of the ball, and clarity of atmosphere must also be taken into account."

Really, pondering these circumstances, one might be mildly surprised that our masculine players have held up as well as they have in the British major fixtures.

Pretty But Slow
A rather more interesting and (I fancy) more germane point made by Miss Wilson is the difference in style.

"With the notable exceptions of Miss Hicks, Miss Hollins, Miss Orcutt and Mrs. Vare," says Miss Wilson, "American women pin their faith to a slow swing, hoping thereby to obtain length by perfect timing. Consequently they sacrifice all their power and length to the development of a pretty style which looks nice, but leaves a fair amount of leeway to be made up in the short game."

Well, my own humble opinion is that it is mainly a difference of playing conditions and surroundings and climate—though denying the 100 degrees. Anyway, Miss Cecil Leitch did not win over here, or Miss Wilson. Miss Wethered never paid a visit. Miss Dorothy Campbell, later Mrs. Hurd, did best of the British girls in our country.

McLarnin Signed for Match.
Jimmy McLarnin has been signed to box in the feature of the all-star boxing card at the Yankee Stadium, July 28. His opponent has not yet been named. Proceeds of the event will be shared with the Daniel Frohman Foundation for Actors Fund.

Constantinople's High Place
For the beautification of his new capital, on the European side of the Bosphorus, Constantine the Great stripped many an ancient city of its monuments. Constantinople thus became the imperial heir to all antiquity.

Schmeling Plans 2 September Bouts

Before sailing for England Thursday night, Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, said the former heavyweight champion plans to engage in two fights during September. Early in that month Max expects to meet Johnny Risko at Cleveland in a charity bout and later appear in a state engagement at Chicago.

Details of the latter contest await completion of a conference to be held between Jacobs and Mayor Cermak of Chicago in London, July 25. King Levinsky, Mickey Walker and Tuffy Griffiths are under consideration as Schmeling's foe. Mayor Cermak will act as sponsor of the event, proceeds of which will go to his City Fund.

Should Levinsky be defeated by Max Baer in the Independence Day fight at Reno, Nev., he would automatically be removed from calculations, Jacobs said. Walker and Griffith will meet in Chicago early in August in a bout that will determine which of those two is to be considered.

Delaware's Early Days
Delaware, in Seventeenth century Colonial days, was for several years a part of the province of New York.

Taylor Tackles Tinsley Tonight

Mickey Taylor, former National Guard champion, meets Joe Tinsley, Peabody negro, in the feature of the boxing card at Woodchiff Park, Poughkeepsie, tonight. Expectations are that the match will be a ginger.

Joe Tinsley being anxious to meet matters with Taylor who got on the popular decision over him some time ago at White Plains.
The semi-finals will bring together Lou Barbo, Max Schmeling's sparring partner, and Tommy Dettman, who helped condition Jack Sharkey for the fight that gave him the heavyweight championship. Several other attractive matches are on the supporting card. The first bout will start at 8:30.

News of Today In Kingston

Early this morning rallies in the homes of the citizens of Kingston, both Democrats and Republicans, were going, bringing in the returns of the Democratic Convention in the last lap of an all night session. Chairman Walsh was calling the names of the delegates of the states for their vote and here the hour told the story.

Delegates from Pennsylvania were balloting when it was discovered that neither the delegate or his alternate was there, yet the vote was given. A discussion was held over this and such votes ruled unofficial.

At this point the Democrats have been criticized for not adjourning about midnight and beginning early this morning. Probably some of the delegates are old gentlemen and can't stand missing sleep and some food, so they left the convention hall for their "forty winks" and a bite to eat.

However, little seemed important in comparison with the real tone of the convention. Apparently it's all Roosevelt and Smith with a little bit of Ritchie tacked on. The results of the balloting of Pennsylvania this morning about 5:45 brought Ritchie only 3.

So "the happy warrior", nominated Thursday afternoon by Governor Ely of Massachusetts, who gave the greatest speech of the convention, and his former stable mate, Roosevelt, are on the cinder path racing it out together and it looks as if Roosevelt is far in the lead.

The New York governor's forces are stronger than Smith's. Still the demonstration for "Al" lasted 20 minutes longer than that for Roosevelt. The exact time for Roosevelt's parade and cheer was one hour and six minutes, while that for Smith was one hour and twenty-six minutes.

"There's no doubt about it," said Ted Husing, "the people want Smith."

But do the delegates?

There's interest here and everywhere as to what Governor Roosevelt will do with Jimmy Walker. Will he or will he not oust him? Suppose Roosevelt gets the nomination. What will he do?

The governor will be in a tighter position than any sardine was ever packed in.

Jimmy's at the convention and everybody thinks he's the greatest fellow on earth, barring his political affiliations.

The way the governor handles Jimmy will mean a lot. Of course, if he ousts him the Democrats are liable to turn against him, while if he doesn't the Republicans who would have voted for him won't. So what to do is the question.

A number of local people are attending the plays nearby at Woodstock and Milton. In both play houses the presentations are splendid.

In the Elverhof Playhouse in Milton, Dorothy Gish, one of Broadway's greatest artists, is now being presented in "The Bride the Sun Shines On." A number of local people have seen it and their opinions were of the highest.

Why can't plays be presented here with just as much success as they are in these little out of the way places? The price isn't as low as that of the movies. In fact it's three times as much or maybe more. Still you people who want your money's worth would certainly get it.

"Is there a baritone in the house?"

To hear them sing at the convention there must be many baritones there, two notes too wet to be good. They sink the way they used to years ago when good things happened.

Occasionally you can distinguish every kind of a note in some of the quartets. It certainly is something new in the line of group singing.

People are wondering if they have lamp poles to hold on to when they sing "Sweet Adeline."

TAME THE COLORADO IN HOOVER PROJECT

Diversion of River Soon Will Be Accomplished.

Boulder City, Nev.—A year ago the territorial Colorado river beat its muddy waters unopposed against the precipitous side of Black canyon where the Colorado forms the boundary between Nevada and Arizona.

Today it looked upward and knew that its temporary career was doomed. For overhead, and like Charles A. Shea, construction director of Six Companies, Inc., builder of Hoover dam, looked down from the portal of a diversion tunnel and said:

"By December we'll have changed your course so that you'll flow peacefully through four tunnels. On your river bed we'll start building Hoover dam, a gigantic tombstone to mark the end of your career."

Work Progressing.

Work of driving the tunnels and pouring the tunnel portion of the 4,500,000 cubic yards of concrete that will go into Hoover dam is progressing rapidly, Shea said.

After the Colorado has been diverted from its age-long course, the dam proper will be started. Up Black canyon's sides, Hoover dam will rear its concrete bulk 730 feet, the highest dam ever constructed. Its crest will be 1,150 feet long. Back of this barrier will be impounded 30,000,000 acre-feet of water.

Waters from this lake—115 miles long and twice as large as San Francisco bay—will be used for irrigating dry areas and generating 1,500,000 horse power hydroelectric energy. The dam will check disastrous river floods.

When the Six Companies, dam contractors, started work just one year ago they couldn't get into Black canyon except by boat. The spiteful Colorado boils through the canyon so viciously that it is five feet higher in mid-stream than at the banks.

Dangerous Task.

The work was as dangerous as construction work can be. There is a rumor that insurance experts estimated that 200 men would be killed the first year. So far 14 men have been killed.

After a year's activity, the construction area forms a triangle. From Boulder City, seven miles away, a highway and a railroad stretch to the upper tunnel portals on the river. Another highway winds down to the lower portals, plunging the last two miles along a 10 per cent grade. Tunnels connect the upper and lower portals, 4,000 feet apart.

Sister Pens Biography of Nicholas Longworth

Paris—Clara Longworth de Chambrun, native Cincinnati, sister of the late Nicholas Longworth and wife of Gen. Comte Adelbert de Chambrun, now in charge of French troops in Tunis, is completing the final chapters of a book about her brother, "The Making of Nicholas Longworth," which is to be published in America early this fall by Ray Long.

The countess de Chambrun already is recognized as one of the world's best authorities on Shakespeare. Her book entitled "Shakespeare: Actor-Poet," originally presented as a thesis at the Sorbonne, is a literary gem and won her not only personal laurels and the admiration of ancient and contemporaries in the field, but also a degree of Docteur des Lettres from the Sorbonne.

The countess de Chambrun's book concerning her brother will mark her debut in English publications in America, and it is the belief of friends that it will be the forerunner of other notable achievements for this Franco-American woman, who already has done so much to promote friendship between the two nations. Her colorful life in Tunis and Morocco, where her husband serves his military command, has furnished the background for many adventure stories, as well as serious works on the life and habits of the north African natives.

Fur Neckpieces Sold as Closed Bank Asset

Boston.—Thirty-five expensive fur neckpieces were sold at retail in the main banking room of the Boston-Continental National bank recently as a novel means of turning collateral into cash.

John B. Cunningham, a federal government representative assigned to liquidate the closed bank's assets, first sought to sell the thirty-five furs, on which the bank had lent money, in one batch, but when he was offered only $200 he decided on disposing of them at retail.

In so doing he obtained more than four times as much money as the amount offered for the lot.

English "Righto" Being Replaced by U. S. "O. K."

London.—The American "O. K." is rapidly displacing the British "Righto" in everyday conversation in Great Britain, despite the opposition of educators.

Motion pictures made in Hollywood continue to gain in popularity here and have become the principal agencies of "the Americanization of England."

(One English columnist the other day made four telephone calls to different numbers as a test and in each case the conversation ended with "O. K." from the person at the other end.)
